

French Police Oust Strikers From Electric And Gas Plants

Guards Sent Out to Assure Operation of Utilities

WALKOUTS SPREAD

'Popular Front' Regime Faces Test of Strength

Paris—(AP)—Police evicted striking workers from six electric plants and two gas works in Paris today in conformity with Premier Camille Chautemps' assertion that the government would combat the dangerous French strike situation "with the greatest vigor."

Mobile guards were sent into electric plants in the industrial suburb of Puteaux to assure their continued operation.

The "popular front" government of Premier Chautemps was confronted with a vital test of its strength as 120,000 public service employees went on strike in the capital and the threatening wave of strikes began spreading through the provinces.

All food handlers in the town of Grand-Combe, near Avignon, struck. They claimed employers had not adhered to collective contracts.

Shipowners In Court

Shipowners at Rouen went into court, demanding that striking crews of 30 ships be fined and imprisoned for failing to accept arbitration.

Chautemps condemned the public service employees strike and inferred that hidden reasons lay behind it—especially significant in the light of recent rightist allegations that communists plotted to overthrow the government during strikes in mid-November.

The walkout, with the endorsement of the French communist party, halted bus and subway service for the city's 3,000,000 workers. Street cleaners, sewer workers, water, gas and electric employees, and garbage collectors walked out.

Taxicabs Busy

Taxi drivers did a rushing business and created a traffic tieup in taking Parisians to work. Others, without normal transportation services, walked to their jobs.

The water, gas and electric services ran on reserves, but there was danger that by nightfall a crippling shortage would result.

Hospital maintenance employees decided upon two hour demonstrations daily. Funeral workers on strike limited activity to "urgent" burials.

All struck in protest against a wage economy section of the 1938 French budget. It would curtail automatic wage increases, promised public employees to cope with the increasing cost of living.

There was no disorder but Premier Chautemps designated steel-hatted mobile guardsmen to patrol the city, bolstering the Parisian police force.

Troops are Ready

Troops of the government of Paris were ready for action if needed. Chautemps avowed, he would use force to restore public services.

There was, the premier said after a conference with his ministers, "no doubt about the intentions of those who provoked the strike. The communist government of Chautemps' coalition government, endorsed the strike at their national congress. But Chautemps' own radical socialist party has been disavowing strikes which also troubled former Premier Leon Blum. Socialist adherents to the people's front have been urging legislation by labor. A split in test settlement of the strike, conceivably may force Chautemps to resign.

The public utility strike comes at a time when the premier is endeavoring to end a series of other strikes in industrial regions outside Paris—Paris truck drivers, employees of the Goodrich rubber factory and several airplane plants, nationally operated, have been out for the last several weeks.

Cabinet Meets

Chautemps, ordering an emergency cabinet session to deal with the Parisian strike, condemned the mass walkout and warned that the government would combat it "with the greatest vigor."

The premier in a statement asserted the strike had been "deliberately provoked."

A preliminary meeting with his principal ministers, the radical-socialist premier declared the government would assure maintenance of essential services for the metropolis.

Squads of steel-hatted mobile guardsmen moved into the capital while the strike mushroomed.

Troops of the "military government of Paris," the army region surrounding the metropolis, were ordered to remain in readiness at their barracks.

Grimly a government spokesman declared: "Chautemps is determined to maintain order."

Distribution of water, gas and electricity remains normal at noon, thanks to reserve supplies and substitute workers, but officials said the population might be requested to reduce consumption tonight if the strike persisted.

'Big Business' on 'Strike' In Attempt 'to Liquidate New Deal,' Jackson Charges

SPEAKS TONIGHT
Damon De Valera, sponsor of the new constitution in 'Eire,' will broadcast to America tonight. The new constitution gave the Irish Free State a new government and a new name.

New Constitution Changes Name of Ireland to 'Eire'

Religious and Military Services Held Throughout Day

Dublin—(AP)—The 15-year-old Irish Free State passed officially into history today and its 26 counties of old Ireland became "Eire."

A new constitution took effect, giving the former free state a new government and a new name—Eire in Gaelic and Ireland in English.

Eamon de Valera, its sponsor, has declared the new document marks an important milestone in Dublin's political march away from London.

Religious and military ceremonies throughout the country commemorated the first "Constitution day."

De Valera was to broadcast to America tonight.

Republicans planned to hold protest meetings in the center of Dublin, but no special precautions, apparently, had been taken to prevent possible disorders.

Press Comment

Editorials in three Dublin papers seemed to exemplify the country's three points of view on the change—for it, against it, or indifferent.

The Irish press said: "It marks the opening of a new era for Ireland—it marks her entry into full stature of nationhood." The Independent, an anti-De Valera organ, declared the new constitution "contains clauses which possibly may be used to interfere with freedom of speech, freedom of the press, freedom of associations and rights of women."

The Irish Times held that it would not make "the slightest difference to the lives of the people."

The new constitution calls for a two-chamber legislature with a prime minister and a president. A president to take the place of De Valera, who became prime minister, and a senate still were to be chosen.

Over 100 Mink are Stolen From Farm

Operators Set Loss at $10,000; Fond du Lac Sheriff Seeks Clues

Fond du Lac—(AP)—The theft of more than 100 mink, valued at $10,000, was reported today by the Grahl Brothers, operators of the Hillside Spring Fur farm about 10 miles east of here.

Sheriff Earl Boettcher of Fond du Lac county was investigating the theft, which apparently occurred some time Monday. The Grahl, Frank, Richard, Oliver and Peter, fur farmers for more than 10 years, discovered the theft late yesterday.

The Grahl believed the intruders killed the mink by stepping on their heads, then stuffed the bodies in burlap bags and dragged them to a waiting automobile.

The Grahl brothers said it appeared the theft was committed by someone who knew the territory surrounding the farm. They said it would be difficult to dispose of the pelts as the season on mink is closed and a dealer's license will be required. The Grahl said the prime value of the animals was for breeding and that their value as pelts was a lesser figure.

3 Killed When Plane Dives Into Lake Erie

Toledo, O.—(AP)—Three persons were drowned today when a plane plunged into Lake Erie a half mile off Put-in-Bay. William Somogy, 30, the pilot, was rescued.

The dead: Nancy Howard, 42; Delbert Watkins, 30, and Albert Anderson, 45, all of North Bass island.

The plane fell into open water, the pilot, blinded by a heavy fog, was unable to land on the ice.

Somogy clung to the tail and was saved by Emil Weisler and Arnold Burggraf, who went to the scene in a boat.

New Deal May Open Attack Upon Critics

Three Developments Indicate Campaign Against Foes in Business

MONOPOLY TARGET

Report Roosevelt Favors Licensing of Interstate Concerns

Philadelphia—(AP)—Assistant Attorney General Robert H. Jackson accused "big business" today of going on a "strike" against the government in an effort "to liquidate the New Deal."

The administration's anti-monopoly crusade in an address prepared for delivery before the American Political Science Association said big business had seized upon the recession "as a cudgel to whack concessions out of government."

They wish, he said, "to liquidate the New Deal and to throw off all governmental interference with their incorporated initiative and their 'aristocratic anarchy'."

Jackson said government was "the only agency with the power to condition capitalism and industrialism to survive" and suggested business was blind to the advantages it derives from the process.

"The unvarnished truth," he said, "is that the government's recovery program has succeeded nowhere else so effectively as in restoring the profits of business. Labor has had no such advance. The small merchant has had no such prosperity. The small manufacturer has had no such advantage."

Compares Operations

"The only just criticism that can be made of the economic operations of the New Deal is that it set out a breakfast for the canary and let the cat steal it; it did not sufficiently guard recovery from the raids of the monopolist. One group in the United States that has no cause for complaint is the big business group."

In support of this statement, he read a table comparing what he said were the 1932 operations of a group of major business concerns with their 1936 profits.

These showed two automobile concerns had a combined loss of $11,000,000 in 1932 and a profit of $301,000,000 in 1936; four steel companies were shown as losing $82,000,000 in 1932 and made $70,000,000 in 1936; three chemical companies reportedly made $27,000,000 in 1932 and $95,000,000 in 1936.

Jackson asserted the "wrath of the people" had been rising as the result of business "strike."

Warns Business

"Now the things they strike against are the things that won the increasing majorities in 1932-34 and 1936-38."

Defends Confabs In Federal Case

Cummings Upholds Department in Talks With Auto-Financing Firms

Washington—(AP)—Attorney General Cummings defended today recent justice department conferences with representatives of the auto-financing industry while a federal grand jury at Milwaukee, Wis., was weighing charges of anti-trust law violations.

"An attorney general who declines to take a case with representatives of interests involved in either civil or criminal proceedings would be discourteous," Cummings told a press conference.

The attorney general declined to reply directly to Senator Borah (R-Idaho) who criticized the department for discussing a consent decree with automobile manufacturers and financing companies while the Milwaukee grand jury was in session.

He did say, however, that "any person who has legitimate business with the department is at liberty to come and talk with me about that business."

The conferences to which Borah referred resulted in discharge of the grand jury Dec. 17 by Federal Judge Ferdinand A. Geiger.

The judge charged that the department acted "improperly" when it conferred with representatives of the industries under investigation and refused to permit the grand jury to report its findings.

Cummings immediately called Geiger's action to the attention of the house judiciary committee. The attorney general held the action to be "obstructive to the administration of justice."

Asks Permanent Writ In Fight for Office

Lansing, Mich.—(AP)—Judge Leland W. Carr of Ingham circuit court, took under advisement today a petition of Melville B. McPherson, Republican, for a permanent injunction to restrain John N. Fegan, Democrat, from seizing the chairmanship of the tax commission. Judge Carr promised a decision "within two days."

John S. McDonald, counsel for McPherson and former state supreme court judge, argued that McPherson's appointment as tax commission chairman by former Governor Frank D. Fitzgerald gave his client the right to retain the position despite Fegan's appointment by Governor Murphy.

Mrs. John Hamilton Is Given Divorce in Kansas

Topeka, Kans.—(AP)—Mrs. Laura Hamilton was granted a divorce in district court here today from John D. M. Hamilton, Republican national chairman.

Chinese Blow Up Telegraph, Radio Stations

Appear to be Ready to Abandon Tsingtao to Advancing Japs

BLASTS ROCK CITY

U. S. and British Warships Ready to Evacuate Foreigners

Shanghai—(AP)—Chinese, apparently preparing to abandon the threatened Shanghai port of Tsingtao, tonight began a campaign of destruction, blowing up all telegraph, cable and radio terminals.

This is the policy the Chinese military has followed in other cities when Japanese occupation seemed imminent.

The explosions, which shook the entire city, cut off all communications and resulted in the greatest tension among the populace, including 150 Americans who had not yet evacuated.

Two United States warships, the cruiser Marblehead and the destroyer Pope, were lying close inshore ready to take on the Americans in the event of sudden necessity, while a British cruiser was placed similarly to handle British nationals.

Organize Vigilantes

Four British coastal ships departed for Shanghai, jammed with foreigners of various nationalities, including Americans, and hundreds of Chinese, mostly of the well-to-do classes.

Fearing a breakdown of local authority, foreigners were organizing vigilantes to take control of the city, if necessary, before the expected Japanese entry. They decided to remain unarmed, except for batons, thereby seeking to avoid clashes with armed elements, either Chinese or Japanese, but at the same time preventing further looting and suppressing panic.

A Japanese transport and a destroyer were lying offshore, but it was not known whether many troops were aboard.

The Japanese have not yet disclosed the plan of the campaign at Tsingtao, but it was believed that land forces, approaching from the west, were expected to take the city.

Flee to Southwest

Chinese, both soldiers and civilians, were fleeing to the southwest through the only remaining avenue of escape, but it was believed this route soon would be cut. The Japanese were advancing along the railway from Tsinan, Shanlung.

Menasha Building Burns; Estimate Damage at $4,000

Firemen Prevent Flames From Spreading to Adjoining Structures

Menasha—(AP)—Fire starting from an overheated furnace caused loss estimated at $4,000 early this morning in the building occupied by the Valley Coffee Shop and the Super Ice Cream Shop, 100 and 102 Main street. The fire had a raging start when it was discovered at 5:25 and only quick work by the fire department prevented its spread to adjoining buildings.

Lloyd Waters, who has been operating the Valley Coffee Shop for six weeks, and his family live upstairs. Smoke was noticed by Berge Waters, brother of Lloyd, and an alarm turned in.

"This fire was run in by the fire department, two in front and one in the rear. The building was filled with smoke. A hole was chopped in the restaurant floor and a fireman wearing a fresh air mask dropped into the basement to direct a stream of water at the base of the flames.

Floor joists were burned away and the flames worked up between the walls into the upstairs. Only a small amount of fire damage was done. The restaurant and the furnishings were severely damaged by smoke.

Mr. Waters estimated the damage to the restaurant fixtures at $2,000. Walls in the restaurant farthest from the flames were blistered by the tremendous heat.

The building is owned by Roland Bleick, 509 N. State street, Appleton. He had purchased it from Ernest Stark, Menasha, last Friday.

The ice cream shop was owned by Emil Baerenwald, 209 S. Douglas street, Appleton, and Ben Dudek, 405 Broad street, Menasha.

Both the building itself and the equipment were covered by insurance.

Stop Selling Milk at 9 Cents in New York

New York—(AP)—The sale of milk at city markets at 9 cents a quart, introduced by Mayor F. H. LaGuardia recently to give the needy an adequate supply of milk at low prices, was stopped today.

William Fellows Morgan, Jr., commissioner of markets, said the independent companies which had been supplying the milk apparently were scared away by threats of a strike by the milk drivers' union.

"We do not intend, by any means, to abandon our program to bring about cheaper milk," Morgan said, adding that he would discuss the situation with the mayor some time today.

The union had threatened to call out its drivers on complaints the independents were violating wage agreements and employing non-union drivers.

The standard "over the counter" price of milk in New York is 10 cents a quart.

Youth Tells How Sight Was Restored; Calls It 'Finest Christmas Present'

Duluth, Minn.—(AP)—An 18-year-old farm youth today told of regaining his sight Christmas night after weeks of blindness.

"It was," he declared, "the finest Christmas present a person could receive."

The youth, Harvey Tjader, 18, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Tjader, who live near Ely, not far from Duluth. Describing the event, which occurred the night after the Ely Lutheran church congregation had prayed that his sight be restored, the young man said, "I was sitting at home with a bandage over my eyes. It was about 7 p. m. All of a sudden something seemed to strike me on the back of the neck. It felt like a blow from a sledge hammer or club.

"Immediately there was a funny sensation in my eyes—a sort of stinging. I slowly lifted the bandage and took a peek. At first I couldn't believe it. I could see with both eyes."

Young Tjader lost the sight of his right eye more than 15 months ago when a chip from a log he was chopping struck the organ, ruptured the optic nerve and formed a clot.

Doctors advised him there was a chance that sight of the eye might come back, but were not very optimistic.

Several weeks ago, the left eye began to fail and Tjader suffered periods of intermittent total blindness. About a week ago the left eye failed completely and the youth was left in total darkness.

NO BOYCOTT

Washington—(AP)—Secretary of Commerce Roper, commenting on movements to boycott Japanese goods, asserted today the department's official attitude was to "stimulate trade with every country." That attitude, he added to reporters, can be changed only by the state department.

Roper turned his comments to the general business picture with the remark that "the sun is still shining." He asserted the nation's banking structure was sound and said prospects for revival of production of durable goods were brightened by a huge backlog of deferred requirements.

4 Men in Mysterious Attack on Organizer

Kansas City—(AP)—O. W. Penney, 40, a CIO organizer, was treated at a hospital today for injuries he said he suffered during a mysterious attack by four men who also slapped his wife.

Penney identified himself as a former Ford assembly plant worker and a founder of a CIO automobile local union here. The beating occurred early today.

A police chase after a speeding car ended in the arrest of four men and the confiscation of a baseball bat, two loaded pistols, a police club, two knives, an ice pick, a black jack, shotgun shells.

The Star says the car "was occupied by four men who declared themselves to be workers at the Ford plant."

The union called a strike against the plant Dec. 10. Ford officials have denied any strike existed in fact and have said operations at the plant are proceeding on a routine schedule.

Dies After Trying to Rescue Four Children

Belmont, N. Y.—(AP)—A farm house fire claimed the lives of four small children and their heroic father who tried to save them early today.

The father, Theodore Oestrich, 43, died in Wellsville Memorial hospital a few hours after his son, Theodore, Jr., 10, succumbed to burns. The bodies of the other three children, Luelle, 6, Jack, 3, and Ruth Eva, 2, were recovered from the ruins of their home two miles east of here early this morning.

Tramp Steamer Is 3 Days Overdue at Chinese Port

Hong Kong—(AP)—Local agents for the tramp steamer Hai Da asked officials today to inquire as to the safety of the vessel, three weeks overdue from Seattle with cargo of sulphur for China.

The steamer had set out from Seattle weeks ago with a Norwegian master, Captain F. C. Norvick, and a Chinese crew to run the Japanese naval blockade of the Chinese coast.

Hong Kong advices said the steamer was British, but it is not listed in the current Lloyd's register. It carried 5,000 tons of sulphur, (ingredient of gunpowder).

Northwest Faces More Heavy Rains

Storm Causes Three Train Wrecks and Disrupts Communications

Seattle—(AP)—More rain was forecast today for the Pacific northwest, already flooded by a three-day storm which caused three train wrecks and disrupted travel and communication.

A fireman was still missing from a Great Northern train wrecked yesterday near Monroe, Wash. The engine and tender went into the Skykomish river.

A trainman was killed when a Canadian National railway engine and tender crashed through a bridge undermined by high water north of Victoria, B. C.

A Canadian Pacific train was caught in a snowslide near North Bend, B. C. One car was almost covered.

Portland's rainfall threatened a 50-year record, 53.33 inches having fallen this year compared to 54.17 inches in 1887. More than six inches fell in 24 hours this week.

The report from Vernonia, Ore., said 100 families were marooned when the upper Nehalem river left its banks.

Seattle's worst downpour since December, 1933, flooded basements, sent tons of mud across streets and caused sewers to dislodge manhole covers and spout like geysers.

500-Year-Old Pine Tree Is Being Cut Down Near Gleason

Gleason, Wis.—(AP)—One of Wisconsin's last sentinels of the forest—pine tree more than 500 years old—went under woodmen's ax today.

Lumbermen started to cut down the huge tree in timberland owned by the Yawkey-Alexander Lumber company, Schofield. Witnesses included a group of Wausau Kiwanis club members, who planned to have a section of the trunk taken to Wausau to be placed on the courthouse square as a memento of the old lumbering days.

The tree is 115 feet high, having lost 25 feet of its crown in a storm. It is about 16 feet in circumference, and 5 feet in diameter. Woodsmen said the tree was in such condition that it could not stand much longer.

The Wausau souvenir, about 10 feet long, and treated with preservatives will be placed under a special shelter.

New London Boy Fatally Injured In Sled Accident

Taylor Graham, 13, Suffers Fractures of Jaw, Skull

New London—(AP)—Taylor Graham, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Graham, 408 S. Pearl street, was fatally injured about 3:20 yesterday afternoon when a sled on which he was coasting collapsed with a truck on W. Wolf River avenue. The boy died less than three hours later, about 6 o'clock, at Memorial hospital of a basal skull fracture and a fractured left jaw. He never regained consciousness.

The accident occurred in front of the American Plywood corporation where the boy and a number of playmates were coasting on a slope directly opposite the road. The truck, loaded with basswood logs for the plant, was driven by Paul Wege of Lebanon. With him was Robert O'Brien, also of Lebanon. The occupants of the truck were not held and after a telephone conference with county authorities Chief of Police Harry D. Macklin said there would be no inquest.

Going east on the street with the truck in second gear, Wege said he saw too late the oncoming sled which dashed out from behind a row of cars parked across from the plant. Witnesses said the sled coasted under the right rear wheel of the truck and the tires struck the boy in the head, apparently throwing his body from the path of the wheel. The sled was crushed to splinters.

The children were accustomed to coasting down a slope and along the sidewalk but in this instance

No Early Ruling on Telephone Rate Case

Madison—(AP)—Circuit Judge A. C. Hoppmann indicated today he will require another month of study before he renders his decision in the Wisconsin Telephone company rate case.

In response to a question by Harold M. Wilkie, attorney for the public service commission during final arguments on the company's appeal, Judge Hoppmann said he would retain the right to call upon either side for additional information at any time. Wilkie had proposed the attorneys be limited to 10 days within which to file supplemental briefs.

Filipino Dishwasher Kills 3 Countrymen

Oakland, Calif.—(AP)—Bonifacio Aranda, 28-year-old Filipino dishwasher, killed three countrymen and wounded 10 others in a shooting and stabbing frenzy after his wife left him. He was held under observation in Alameda county hospital today.

Policemen Lee Brown and Dan Hugu, who captured Aranda yesterday after he had terrorized his countrymen in a three-block area, quoted him: "I went crazy after my wife left me and I saw her again today downtown."

Condemned Kidnapers May Appeal Verdicts

Huntington, W. Va.—(AP)—An appeal from death penalties by two of three condemned kidnapers of the late Dr. James I. Seder, appeared certain today with the order for a transcript of evidence in their case.

The pair, Orville Paul Adkins and John Travis, are in the death house in Moundsville awaiting execution March 21, along with Arnett Alan Root.

A check to cover estimated cost of the transcription, necessary for an appeal, was given by William Paulley of Salspeter, W. Va., a relative of one of the men.

World Conditions Causing Him 'Growing Concern'

NOT "PREPARING" No Reference to Nation Threatening Peace of U. S.

Washington—(AP)—President Roosevelt, announcing the projected construction of two new battleships and 16 lesser craft, left a distinct impression today his "growing concern" over international conditions might prompt him to ask congress for even more naval armament.

"Facts are facts and the United States must recognize them," he said in a letter yesterday to Chairman Taylor (D-Colo.) of the house appropriations committee.

Citing the failure of his own efforts to arrest the world armament race, the president added: "The fact is that in the world as a whole many nations are not only continuing but are enlarging their armament programs."

Mr. Roosevelt emphasized at a press conference, however, that the prospective increase in this country's fleet was not a part of a "preparedness program." Some observers interpreted his action as reflecting a desire to hasten the achievement of maximum naval strength which under present policy would not be attained until 1942.

Program Not Drafted

The number and types of new vessels which may be recommended, the chief executive said, still are subjects of study. Naval officers said the fleet now is most deficient in auxiliary vessels and unarmed destroyers. They also said battleships under construction status should be replaced.

The president's letter said specifically he was not referring to any one nation as threatening the peace of the United States. It was noted, also, that it did not mention the recent sinking of the American gunboat Panay by Japanese war planes, which precipitated a critical diplomatic session. He wrote: "The preliminary estimates submitted by the director of the budget to the naval subcommittee were prepared sometime ago and called for appropriations to commence during the fiscal year 1939 two battleships, two light cruisers, eight destroyers and six submarines."

"Growing Concern"

"Since that time world events have caused me growing concern. Under the constitution the president is commander-in-chief of the army and navy and has, therefore, a very specific duty to safeguard the defense of national interests."

"Will you, therefore, be good enough to inform the subcommittee that on next session of the congress has met, it is possible that I may send supplementary estimates for commencing construction on a number of ships additional to the above program?"

Publication of the letter evoked a cool response from the handful of senators available here for comment.

Senator Borah of Idaho, senior Republican member of the foreign relations committee, expressed a hope that "the president will not find it necessary to call for a large armaments outlay."

Senators Wheeler (D-Mont.) said he saw "no necessity for spending millions of dollars for armaments and battleships when one-third of our people are ill-housed, ill-fed and ill-clothed."

Senator Johnson (D-Colo.) said he was "very much opposed to putting any more money into the navy," while Senator Adams (D-Colo.) remarked he lacked "initial enthusiasm for the idea."

Unofficially it has been reported that the original budget estimates for 1939 will call for an increase of $50,000,000 over the current naval appropriation of $518,000,000. This increase might be widened considerably if funds for additional ships are supplied.

The United States fleet now stands second in strength among the world's navies. It is outranked by Great Britain in both total tonnage and aircraft construction now in progress or appropriated for.

Scores Escape From Fire at Jersey City

Jersey City, N. J.—(AP)—A spectacular three-alarm fire endangered the lives of scores of people in the city's largest hotel today but was brought under control quickly without fatalities.

Dozens of residents of the eight-story plaza, situated on Journal square in the heart of the business sector, climbed down fire ladders to safety; at least two men jumped from the sixth floor into fire nets; firemen carried out others.

Several—the number was not immediately determined—were taken to hospitals for treatment.

Employees to Lose Jobs

Madison—(AP)—State Treasurer Sol Levitan announced today that 12 employees of the beverage tax division will be dismissed after Jan. 1 in an economy move to "keep the budget expenditures within its limits."

He said he had not determined who will be laid off.

Military Activity Is Intensified in Aragon War Zone

Troops Become More Active as Weather Conditions Improve

Madrid.—(4)—While the Spanish government fought to crush the last remnants of insurgent resistance in Teruel, improved weather conditions in the upper Aragon today permitted a resumption of military activity all along the battle front.

After three weeks of inaction, troops from Hueca southward to Teruel were busy strengthening their positions and repairing communications damaged by recent floods and snow storms.

Government artillery shelled Hueca yesterday, reporting several direct hits. Insurgent batteries replied but no great damage was admitted.

Government artillery just north of Teruel laid down heavy fire in an effort to halt the insurgent counter-attack on the captured city, where about 6,000 insurgent soldiers and civilians were still holding out.

Desperate Attempts

The government said insurgent troops made several desperate attempts to break through lines around Teruel but were checked.

Government troops closed in for occupation of two dynamite-battered buildings from which the insurgent garrison of Teruel had blazed defiance for a week.

At the same time the insurgent army which lost the strategic provincial capital to the government surprise offensive made desperate efforts to recover it by mastery of the air.

Four insurgent planes were brought down in flames yesterday in a spectacular air battle—outmaneuvered and beaten off in two attempts to break through the government's air defenses.

Capture Stronghold

The insurgents hoped to use their aerial strength in forcing government forces now in full control of Teruel except for the two thick-walled buildings believed to house the 3,000-man garrison and an equal number of civilians.

The besiegers had reduced by one the number of insurgent strongholds in the old quarter of the city. The besiegers still cling to the civil governor's palace and the bank of Spain building.

Yesterday government soldiers, moving behind a protecting phalanx of tanks, pushed up to the insurgents' seminary-fortress, blew up barricades of wheat sacks at the doors and through the building, throwing hand grenades.

The defenders held out to the last and then retreated to the adjacent courtyard of the Santa Anna convent and thence to other hiding places. Government advisers said both the convent and the seminary were in flames.

Ping-Pong Tournament On Open House Program

A ping-pong tournament, open to men, women and children, will be one of the features of the open house program which will be held at the Y. M. C. A. New Year's day.

Letters were mailed today from the office of Homer Gebhardt, general secretary, to members throughout the city, inviting them to participate in the games and athletic exhibitions which will be staged.

The program opens at 10 o'clock in the morning and ends at 10 o'clock in the evening. About 150 persons will take part in the program. During the open house a year ago, more than 1,000 spectators visited the Y during the day.

Father and Son Named Marquette Instructors

Milwaukee.—(7)—A father and son today were added to the faculty of Marquette university college of engineering.

Dean Franz A. Kartak announced the appointment to his staff of John G. Shodron, Milwaukee engineer and architect, and his son, John M. Shodron of Peoria, Ill., a 1935 graduate of Notre Dame.

Both will teach in the mechanical department of the engineering college, Dean Kartak said.

Transient Asks Shelter; Faces Charge of Theft

Madison.—(7)—Herbert Bell, 21, no fixed abode, walked into the police station here last night and asked for lodging.

He was accommodated—in a police cell, not in the transient quarters. Sheriff Ira Fyck, Austin, Minn., had asked officials to arrest him on a charge of stealing a suitcase full of clothes.

Oil Company Pays Freight on Hobos Traveling in Tank

Edmonton, Alta.—An oil company at McMurray, Alta., paid freight rates on seven hobos who rode to the plant inside a huge distiller tank from Edmonton, then gave them jobs.

The company was irritated when the Northern Alberta railway billed it for 900 pounds additional weight on the tank, shipped from Caspar, Wyo., at a weight of 47,000 pounds.

Its kick brought official report that when railway checkers had checked the tank at Edmonton it tipped the scales at 47,900.

How could an empty tank put on 900 pounds weight while traveling through Alberta?

The oil company superintendent went to find out. Peeping into the "empty" tank, he was met by seven grimy knights of the road who had traveled in comfort at the company's expense.

Taking up their novel traveling quarters before the "weigh-in," they had added that extra 900 pounds which caused so much concern.

Their first demand was for jobs—and they got them.

Commission to Hear Dinneens

Madison.—(7)—A hearing before the state tax commission will be the next step in the case of William M. Dinneen, former secretary of the public service commission, accused with his wife of failing to report nearly $400,000 of income for taxation.

Suits by the Dinneens to prevent the commission collecting $75,000 in back assessments and penalties were dismissed late yesterday by Circuit Judge A. C. Hoppmann when an agreement by opposing counsel for a hearing before the commission. The date has not been set.

In sworn complaints filed by their attorney, William R. Curkeet, Mr. and Mrs. Dinneen claimed the alleged unreported income was "fictitious." They already had obtained a temporary restraining order from a court of competent jurisdiction to prevent an adverse examination of the tax commissioners.

Judge Hoppmann quashed both these actions at the request of Attorney William H. Spohn, special state counsel in the investigation of the bankrupt B. E. Buckman investment firm. The investigation produced the information on which the commission acted.

As a partial compromise Curkeet and Spohn agreed no jeopardy warrant would be issued against the Dinneens. A warrant would have required them to post bond of $150,000, double the amount of the taxes. The stipulation forbids the Dinneens disposing of any property pending settlement.

Flashes of Life

By the Associated Press

Detroit, Mich.—From 1 to 5 o'clock a. m. on the first day of 1938, Fred A. Nolan said, "there will be a lot of people who will not be sleeping, walking any farther than necessary."

And there'll be motorists who won't want to drive home from a party.

No Nolan, general manager of Detroit's street railway and motor bus system, announced that, between the hours mentioned, "all our buses will go right to the door of any passenger who lives on a paved street not more than two blocks off the regular route."

The service will not include ringing doorbells.

Dead-Eye Gerald

Lisbon, Iowa.—As he had done many times before with meticulous care, Gerald "Toot" Hill, town bank cashier, drew his pistol and fired toward the skylight, ending the first half of a Cornell college basketball game.

To the floor, almost at his feet, followed following in its wake, dropped the carcass of a pigeon.

Students, concealed in the rafters, chorled loudly.

Library Board to Hold First 1938 Meet Jan. 4

The Appleton Public Library board will hold its first meeting of the new year at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the library. A report of the finance committee will be heard and the librarian's monthly report will be reviewed.

YOUNG FATHER CHARGED WITH MURDER OF FOSTER SON

Henry Nead, 19, and his wife, Luella, 15, joined hands in the Wood county jail at Wisconsin Rapids, Wis., after Nead had been charged with slaying his six-week-old foster son. Sheriff Henry Becker said Nead blamed his dead father's ghost for forcing him to slap the infant's head until it died.

Faces Trial as Result Of Dairy Holdup Attempt

Milwaukee.—(7)—Thomas Smeel, local tavern operator, was free under $1,000 bond today to await trial Jan. 4 on a charge of being an accessory in an attempted safe robbery at the Luick Dairy company.

Acting Detective George H. Raabe and one of the robbers were killed in an exchange of gunfire as police frustrated the attempt to rifle the dairy company's safe last Nov. 2.

Four Chicagoans charged with first degree murder in Raabe's death recently were sentenced to Waupun prison for life.

Smeel had been held in jail since Nov. 3, accused by police of permitting the men to use his tavern as a hangout while they planned the safe robbery.

Many Permanent Improvements in City During 1937

$185,000 Spent on New Pavements, Sewers And Sidewalks

More permanent improvements were made in Appleton during 1937 in the way of regular city work than ever before and all have been paid out of the 1936 levy plus special assessments levied on property benefited, according to Mayor John Goodland, Jr.

About $185,000 was spent for new pavements, resurfacing work, sanitary and storm sewers, grading and graveling streets, installing water mains and sewers and on sidewalks.

Concrete pavements were laid on W. College avenue, N. Morrison street, S. Lave street and W. Packard street. A total of 23,500 square yards of concrete was laid on the four streets at an approximate cost of $70,000.

Resurfacing of College avenue and W. Washington street cost about $50,000. A total of 39,000 square yards of cold mix asphalt was used by the contractor. Both projects were accepted by the council with the stipulation that low areas be brought up to grade by July 1.

A total of 8,500 lineal feet of curb and gutter was laid on sections of College avenue and Washington street. The WPA furnished and paid for 80 per cent of the labor and material. WPA has been and still is a great help to the city and has made possible much constructive work and saved the city direct costs of improvements.

Sanitary and storm sewers installed during the year totaled 15,605 lineal feet and were laid at a cost of $28,000. A total of 12,865 lineal feet of city streets were graded and gravelled at a cost of $15,000. Water mains totaled 9,827 lineal feet and cost the city $15,000 while sidewalks totaled 9,543 lineal feet and cost the city $7,000.

Despite the improvements and construction of the sewage plant and the new senior high school, the city is in fine financial condition with all bills paid, the mayor said. The only debts in the city is bonded indebtedness totaling $9 per cent of the city's bonding limit.

A member of the eighth grade class at Lincoln Junior High school, Taylor Graham was born June 15, 1924, at Canton, Minn. His parents came to New London the home of Mrs. Graham, about nine years ago. Two brothers and a sister survive. Wayne, 16; Lois Ann, 15; and James, 11. One grandparent, Mrs. L. M. Johnson, lives at Canton, Minn.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon at the Congregational church with the Rev. A. W. Sweeney in charge. Burial will be in Floral Hill cemetery. The body will be at the Lehmann-Kircher Funeral home until the services.

New London police yesterday said that special effort has been made during the holiday vacation to keep the children from playing and coasting on the streets and highways and many have been repeatedly sent away from dangerous places. The tragedy yesterday emphasized the importance of cooperation from parents in that respect, they warned.

Stop Issuance of Maps on Detours

State Highway Commission To Make Weekly Statements on Conditions

With only two major detours remaining on Wisconsin highways, the state highway commission has discontinued the issuing of weekly detour maps, and has started issuing weekly statements to service map subscribers giving traffic conditions about the state.

Two detours will remain all winter, the state highway commission announces. One is on United States 141 between Wausau and Crivitz in Marinette county, while the other is the Eagle River bridge in Vilas county, crossed by United States 45 and State Trunk 70.

The last detour map shows a small detour on State Trunk 116 at Oniro in Winnebago county, but this is being removed with the completion of sewer work. Work on United States Highway 2 in Ashland is being completed and this detour, also shown on the last map, will come off.

The next detour map will be issued as soon as the spring construction season opens.

Burlington Liars Club to Name World Champion on New Year's Day

Burlington, Wis.—(4)—A new "diamond-studded gold medal" awaits the winner of the 1938 lying contest engineered by the Burlington Liars Club, Inc., due to be named on the afternoon of New Year's day.

Although his position as president of the club makes the announcement of the new medal open to suspicion, O. C. Hulet said today that it was a fact, and that the new medal is needed because Mrs. Gale Barnhouse of Fowlerville, Mich., told him she was robbed of the medal given her last year. (Each winner holds the medal for a year.)

"That may just be Mrs. Barnhouse's entry in this year's contest," Hulet said. "But I have to believe her. He backed the family silverware in order to get a new medal made."

This will be the ninth time that a champion liar has been named. The championship now covers a lot of territory, for there are, Hulet's figures show, 62,000 admitted and accredited liars scattered all over the globe, and registered at Burlington.

From a passel of plain, everyday lies, the club officers have sifted out a few of the better efforts for final judgment. One of these came from Mrs. M. O. Johnson of Cudahy, Wis. She related how back in '21 the family took a trailer trip through the California redwoods.

One day, darkness fell, the road became bumpy. Finally the headlights picked out a level meadow, and there we camped for the night. Came dawn, and the family discovered it had parked atop a redwood tree. With rare presence of mind, Mrs. Johnson called out to a woodsman below, and he chopped down the tree. As the redwood plunged to the earth, the Johnsons drove their trailer down the trunk.

Mrs. C. Korosic of New York city told how she accidentally stepped off the curb into a pool of water. Looking down, she saw the water receding swiftly. The tongues of her shoes were lapping it up.

John Zelenak, Jr., of Tacoma, Wash., wrote that during the drought years things got so bad it was necessary to plant watermelons next to staple crops. When the melons ripened, they were punctured so that they threw streams of water onto the crops. These watermelons were so big, as Zelenak described them, that the seeds were hollowed out and used for row-boats.

"You can see what a problem it's going to be to pick a winner," Mr. Hulet sighed.

Madison Man Governor Of Aeronautic Chapter

Milwaukee.—(4)—Howard Morey of Madison was elected governor of the National Aeronautic association's Wisconsin chapter at the concluding session of a state convention here yesterday.

Paul Toby, Wausau, was named vice president; Dr. F. S. Morgan, Lake Mills, secretary, and Kenneth Olsen, Racine, treasurer.

The group selected Wausau as the site of the 1938 convention, which will be held during the second week in October.

Schneider Talks On Legislation at Progressive Meet

Mrs. Mabel Johnson, Appleton, Named Secretary Of County Organization

Congressman George Schneider spoke on legislation considered at the special session of congress at a meeting of the Farmer-Labor Progressive federation of Outagamie county last night at the Trades and Labor hall. He discussed the special bills proposed by President Roosevelt and the progress being made with them.

Harry Jack, state president of the Wisconsin Cooperative Milk pool, and Anton M. Miller, Kaukauna, former state senator, also gave short talks.

Mrs. Mabel Johnson, Appleton, was named secretary to succeed Roland Beyer Kaukauna. Miller was named delegate to the state conference of the Farmer-Labor Progressive federation at Madison Jan. 22 and 23. Milo Singler was named alternate. Samuel Sigman also will attend the session, being a delegate by virtue of his position on the state executive board.

The county association unanimously went on record favoring a boycott of Japan-made goods and also those of other aggressive fascist nations. The resolution protested the action of Japan in its war on China and any acts of other fascist countries that menace peace in the world.

Devise Plan to Avert Shortage Of Food Produce

Great Britain Develops Process to Ripen Crops Artificially

London — A vast emergency food plan, designed to prevent a food shortage in Great Britain in event of war, has been drawn up by British scientists.

Under the scheme, crops that now take months to mature could be ripened artificially in as many weeks, vast quantities of food could be stored for long periods, and production capabilities of agricultural land could be greatly increased, it was reported.

"We can now make Britain self-supporting for a minimum period of from two to three years by intensive methods, and no war is likely to last anything like as long as that," one leading British chemical research specialist declared. "Hay crops, first essential in the nation's milk supply, can be produced artificially in three weeks. Wheat can be brought from growing to maturity in little more than a month."

"The method employed is to sow the seed in huge trays filled with chemically treated water and force its growth in artificial light. No soil is used. All the chemical components required for rapid growth are in the water."

New methods of fertilizing will be used to make many large areas of waste land productive. Propaganda is being used to initiate a general movement to improve fertilization and keep the soil everywhere in good health against an emergency.

In the last war, compulsory tillage schemes were introduced by the government. In the event of another emergency the use of certain fertilizers would be made compulsory also.

Joyce Kilmer, author of the poem "Trees," was killed in action during the World war.

provinces capital, and approaching the Shantung borders from the south.

Meanwhile, Japan's conquering army claimed "in principle" today the right to extend provisions of its military law into Shanghai's International Settlement and French concession, where thousands of Americans and other foreigners make their homes.

The Japanese army spokesman announced the claim, under which troops could enter foreign areas still outside Japanese control and arrest and try "all persons" suspected of crimes against Japan's armed forces.

Japanese forces would proceed cautiously in any case where Americans and other foreigners holding treaty rights to be tried by courts of their own nations were suspected, the spokesman said.

He stated that the basis of the Japanese claim was "de facto" military occupation and specified it would be enforced in occupied territory. When asked whether Japanese claimed occupation of the international areas, he refrained from answering.

Pay No Duties
Japanese freight cargoes, meanwhile, were being landed in increasing amounts without payment of duties or customs examination.

This caused growing apprehension on the future of American and other firms competing with Japanese and on the future ability of China to pay debts of some $800,000,000 including external debt of $180,000,000 to United States and other countries. The debts are guaranteed by customs receipts. The new Japanese military law claims brought into prominence the question of extraterritoriality.

Remits Fine for Sale Of Misbranded Milk

Otto Dybus, 1709 N. Richmond street, was found guilty of selling misbranded bottled milk by Judge Thomas H. Ryan in municipal court this morning. The milk dealer was fined $25 and costs, and the fine remitted upon payment of costs. Dybus was arrested on Oct. 20 and had pleaded not guilty to the charge when he appeared in municipal court the following day.

'200 Families' Target of French Working Classes

Charge 'Money Barons' Got Riches by Luck, Keep Them by Force

Paris — (AP) — France's working classes are still making war on the "200 families" in a "soak the rich" campaign that shows no sign of subsiding.

Stripped of their exclusive powers of vote in the Bank of France a year ago, the "200 families" continue nevertheless to represent in the popular mind the "money barons," the "financial oligarchy."

The Chautauque government also is having its share of the protest that made life hard for the proletariat. Blum administration. Strikes, parades, street fights continue around demands for a better distribution of wealth.

The "people's" leaders charge that the "200 families," dating back to Napoleon's time, got their riches by luck and keep them by force.

The "200" originated in 1880, when Bonaparte created the Bank of France. He stipulated that the right to elect the board of regents would be given only to the 200 largest stockholders.

In July, 1936, parliament replaced the board of 15 regents elected by the "200 families" with a committee of directors elected "more democratically."

Only two of these directors can be in any way voted in by the "200 families," as such. The new provisions permit the shareholders to elect two of the directors, but here the smallest shareholder is on an even footing with any of the first "200."

By electing directly or indirectly the other 18 members of the committee of directors, the government has definitely overthrown the influence of the "200 families" in the bank's operations. It dictates the external administration of the bank.

Wendel Best Known
The right of vote for all shareholders proved to be the source of some confusion when at the annual meeting of October 15, 1936 only 900 of the 40,000 investors were able to fight their way into the meeting. The French labor leader, Leon Jouhaux, sat at the officers' table beside the president of the bank, and the crowd yelled at him and for him so much that the meeting had to be suspended several times.

The Bank of France has more than 180,000 shares of stock outstanding, owned by 40,000 investors — an average of four and a half shares each. The upper 200 owners have an average of 40 shares each — nearly 10 times as many. In other words, they comprise one-half of one percent of the total stockholders, but own 20 per cent of the stock.

Francois de Wendel is one of the best known of the "200." Senator from the Department of Mauthier-Moselle, member of the board of directors of the Bank of France, and president of the French Steel Institute (Comite des Forges), he is probably the most powerful capitalist in France today.

Wendel has three brothers: Humbert, Maurice and Guy, all well-known in political and business circles, all members of the "200."

ial rights—which under current treaty stipulations make all foreigners except Russians and Germans subject only to laws of their own country.

It came two days after the Japanese army put Americans and other foreigners in China's conquered areas under military law which, among other things, provided death for acts against Japan's armed forces.

Fight Jap Advances
It was announced as Chinese troops bitterly contested Japanese invasion into two of the nation's richest provinces—Shantung and Chekiang. The invaders already have raised the rising sun flag over most of northern China, the rich lower Yangtze valley, and a handful of China's wealthiest cities.

Tsingtao, Shantung's main seaport, virtually was cut off by Japanese troops closing in on the city where destruction of some $100,000,000 of Japanese property brought a Japanese threat of drastic punitive action.

Latest advices received by the American consulate were that 159 Americans remained in Tsingtao and 13 were in the city's environs. The cruiser Marblehead and the destroyer Pope stood by to aid them.

Four-fifths were evacuated to Shanghai on the gunboat Sacramento. 26 others had evacuated on coastwise vessels.

Railroads Objective
Japanese troops pushing southward from Tsinan, conquered Shantung capital, attacked Tsinan, 30 miles from Tsinan on the route to Shanghai. It was apparent that Japanese intended to take over and operate railway lines connecting Peking, Tientsin and Shanghai.

Other columns, driving south from Hangchow, captured Chekiang capital, occupied Linan, and approached Lanchow, railway center where heavy Chinese troop concentrations were reported.

Shanghai itself was a center of friction, with municipal police attempting to prevent a repetition of two incidents in which grenades were thrown at Soochow creek launches filled with Japanese troops.

Post Office Staff Breathes Sigh of Relief, for Christmas Rush Is Over

Postmaster Stephen Balliet and his post office force are back on a schedule of regular meals and sleep, their pulse beats are normal, and their face muscles have relaxed their tension.

The pressure lid is off. Christmas is over.

Out of the welter of Christmas cards and letters, out of the mountainous piles of packages, out of the crowds that jammed the lobby, have come stories worth narrating.

Postmaster Balliet told a few today.

One man presented an unsealed Christmas card for mailing which carried only a 1-cent stamp. Postmaster Balliet told him he needed a half-cent more postage.

"Where do I put it?" the man inquired.

"Just stick it on the envelope," the postmaster replied.

There was a pause in the story's continuity while the man sidled to a window to buy the half-cent stamp. He returned and presented it once more. A 1-cent stamp was still the only visible postage on the envelope.

"Why, where is the other stamp," the postmaster asked.

"I stuck it under the first one," the man said.

After he had been introduced to the fundamentals of Uncle Sam's regulations, he laboriously peeled off the top stamp and placed it beside the half-cent.

One letter containing two money orders, one for $5 and one for $2 but which lacked an address was mailed at the post office. The sender was located through the information on the money order blanks.

A letter containing $2 in cash was sent from Phillips to a young lady in Appleton. The letter was from relatives of the young woman who apparently were misinformed on her whereabouts. She was unknown here. Postmaster Balliet has written the Phillips postmaster about it.

The post office found many letters and cards without addresses, sometimes as many as 10 or 15 in one bundle. And some had neither addresses nor stamps, just a card or letter inside.

The Appleton post office had 502,000 cancellations of cards and letters from Dec. 8 through Dec. 24, 24,000 more than last year's figure for the same length of time.

Judge Refuses to Declare Mistrial In U. S. Oil Case

Warns Opposing Attorneys Not to Make Side Remarks Before Jury

Madison — (AP) — Judge Patrick T. Stone, who refused yesterday to declare a mistrial in the federal government's gasoline price-fixing case, again warned opposing attorneys today to refrain from side remarks before the jury.

In one of the stormiest sessions since the trial started three months ago the judge yesterday lectured counsel on their courtroom deportment. He said they have been "roaring at each other" and would have to stop it.

When today's session opened he told prosecutors and defense attorneys:

"This jury is too sensible to pay any attention to side remarks between counsel."

The session then proceeded quietly. The defense presented a series of accounting witnesses who told of the gasoline production of various independent refineries in Oklahoma and Texas.

Sixteen major oil companies on trial are accused of conspiracy to raise and fix midwestern prices in 1935 and 1936. They are charged with taking up as much as half of the output of independent refineries in the mid-continent and east Texas fields through a buying program during those years.

Donovan Motion
The motion for a mistrial was made by Chief Defense Counsel William J. Donovan after Judge Stone had agreed with a contention of prosecutors that the defense was "wasting time." Donovan declared the judge's statement was unfair to the defendants.

After the accounting testimony today, the defense called Sidney Swensrud of Cleveland, Ohio, an officer of Standard Oil company of Ohio — not a defendant — who said he had testified as a market-maker for the government in two NRA petroleum code cases. He formerly was a member of the Harvard business school faculty.

Swensrud testified that gasoline service station patronage is "extremely sensitive to variations in price." Apparently the defense was heading toward an attempt to show that if the major oil companies had maintained high prices as alleged, they would have lost their business.

Cites Three Studies
The witness cited three studies which he said he had made of price-cutting. In Los Angeles, he said, seven major oil companies sold 81 per cent of the gasoline during the first three months of 1933 while they met price cuts of their competitors. In the next three months Swensrud testified, the majors did not meet the price cuts, and their percentage of the business fell to 66 per cent, their competitors nearly doubling their business.

Swensrud said one of his company's filling stations on the outskirts of Columbus, Ohio, met a competitor's prices one spring. From April to June, he said, his company's station's business rose from 8,000 gallons to 250,000 gallons a month, until the company halted its experiment and raised this station's prices to those at other Columbus outlets.

He also said that stations in the northern part of Toledo, Ohio, did 39 per cent less business in 1932 than in 1930 and attributed most of the decline to price wars in Detroit — 55 miles away — where he said travelers filled up their tanks.

Marinette Residents Acclaim Yule Display
Marinette — (AP) — City residents found their best municipal Christmas display in the front yard of Dr. E. H. Redeman, Marinette dentist, who has earned the title of "Mayor of Santa Town" with his annual Yule displays.

Dr. Redeman worked nine weeks this year to complete his miniature of Sontag bay, the arctic base of Commodore Robert E. Peary's expedition in 1909. The exhibit includes Santa Claus' castle, workers' homes, igloos, bridges, and more than 150 vari-colored lights.

This year's exhibit is Dr. Redeman's best annual affair. He says he enjoys sitting in his front window and noting the expressions and comments of the many residents who drive or walk to his premises to view the layout.

Appleton Man Returns After Long Plane Trip
F. F. Jilison, 702 E. Fremont street, returned yesterday from a 2,000-mile airplane trip in Canada. He made the trip with an uncle from Sisco Lake, Mich., and flew from that city last Thursday. They flew as far as Quebec and over the Hudson Bay.

Kenneth Gerhart, 708 E. Hancock street, submitted to an appendectomy yesterday at St. Elizabeth hospital.

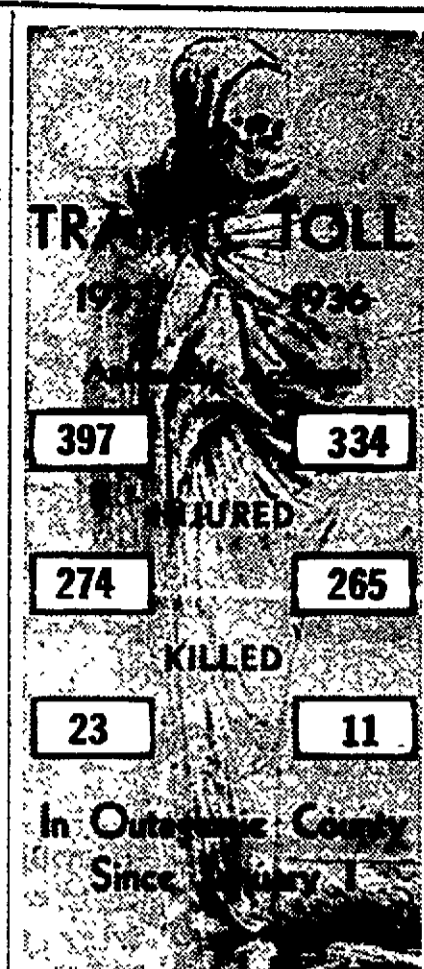

Arrangements were completed by her husband, David B. Garber, who arrived this morning. At the St. Vincent's hospital James Rudd, Sr., and James Rudd, Jr., who also were burned in the blaze, were reported in good condition.

Mrs. Garber and the child were visiting with her uncle, Mr. Rudd, when the tragedy occurred Sunday.

'Big Business' on 'Strike,' Jackson Charges in Speech

1936," he said. "Do these big business men think they can strike down a whole program that so held the hopes of men without arousing bitter resentment?"

The assistant attorney general asserted the "real brains" of private enterprise were in subordinate positions—kept there because "the rich man's son, or the clever corporate politician with a pocket full of proxies, can stay at the top of the company indefinitely."

Denying higher labor costs brought the business recession, Jackson said labor would be happy to get the percentage advance that "big business has given to its own darlings."

As examples of the increases he said management had received, he asserted "Mr. Sloan of General Motors" (Alfred P. Sloan, chairman of the board), received in 1934 compensation of $201,473.75; in 1935, $274,505; and in 1936, $351,311.

He added that William S. Knudsen, General Motors president, received $211,123.53 in 1934; $375,475 in 1935 and $507,645 in 1936.

"Of course the executive, like the laborer, is worthy of his hire."

Promises Cooperation During Special Term
Lansing, Mich. — (AP) — Speaker George A. Schroeder of Michigan's house of representatives pledged today that the state legislative council would work in close cooperation with Governor Frank Murphy in drafting an acceptable program for the forthcoming special session of the legislature.

He said the council would sound out members of the legislature and advise the governor "what he can and cannot get."

Schroeder, chairman of the council, said Murphy had indicated he would call the special session late in January or early in February.

Responding to a question from a council member, Schroeder said it was possible repeal of the state sales tax would be proposed and some other levy substituted for it, possibly a tax on liquor.

Britain Rejects Jap Version of Attacks on Boats

London Government Studies Tokio's Reply To Protests

Tokio — (AP) — The British embassy today informed the Japanese foreign office that it could not accept the Japanese military version of attacks on the British gunboat Ladybird and Bee.

The military section of imperial headquarters yesterday had issued a statement explaining that the attacks were a "mistake" and expressing regrets. Text of the Japanese reply to Britain's protest on the attacks was not made public.

One British sailor was killed in the incident, which occurred on the Yangtze river on the same day the United States gunboat Panay was bombed.

London — (AP) — Great Britain today received Japan's reply to a protest against the Japanese attack on the British gunboats Ladybird and Bee and immediately distributed copies to cabinet members for consideration before making it public.

The note will be published tonight or tomorrow.

There was no indication of the nature of the 1,200-word communication. Informed sources said the fact that it was temporarily withheld did not mean the government was dissatisfied with it.

At the same time, the Japanese military version of the attacks on the British vessels was described here as "an unacceptable interpretation" and the British embassy in Tokio was instructed last night to inform Japan to that effect.

Boy Hitch-Hiker Makes Trip From California

Chicago — (AP) — Fourteen-year-old Richard Eugene Belger's independently conducted travel tours between California and Wisconsin were somewhat interrupted today by Cook county highway police.

Richard, lugging a pack of food which, he explained, was practically enough to get him back to his home in Belvidere, Ill., was stopped by highway police.

The food, he said, came from Mrs. William Davis, matron of the detention home in Racine, Wis., where he spent the Christmas-tide.

It was a return visit. A year ago when he ran away he was taken in, so to speak, at Racine.

Richard said Mrs. Davis treated him so nicely he decided to come back. He left home Dec. 10.

Juvenile authorities today pondered how to send him home by some means other than his own travel ticket, his hitch-hiking thumb.

Branigan Charged With Libel by City Attorney

Janeville — (AP) — A warrant for the arrest of E. R. Branigan, editor of city ward supervisor, was issued today, charging criminal libel.

The complaint was made by District Attorney John H. Matheson acting in behalf of himself, and was signed by Circuit Judge Jesse Earl. The court named Attorney Lynn H. Smith of Jefferson as special prosecutor for the action.

Matheson charged he was libeled in a publication which Branigan issued Dec. 16 in Beloit, accusing Matheson of official misconduct and using his office to protect the client of a Janeville law firm.

Branigan, a former political power in Beloit, is an ice and fuel dealer. His publication is known as "The Spectator."

Sheriff James E. Croake said he expected to serve the warrant on Branigan today.

Drive Carefully. Over New Years, Chief Prim Warns

Couples Plea With That of Highway Commission To Cut Accidents

Chief of Police George T. Prim today coupled a plea with that of the Wisconsin State Highway commission for safe driving over New Year's. Numerous parties and celebrations will be held and this will increase traffic in the city and on highways and motorists should be extra cautious in driving, he said.

Vias county suspended its traffic officer Dec. 1, but the board of supervisors voted to have him returned to duty early next year, so no county with a traffic patrol in 1937 will be without one in 1938, the state highway department states.

Counties starting traffic patrols in 1938 that had no officer a year ago are Bayfield, Crawford, Green, Green Lake, Iowa, Juneau, Marquette, Monroe, Pepin and Wausau.

Although the state highway commission and safety councils, in appealing to county boards to create traffic safety patrols of six or more officers stressed their importance in safety educational and accident prevention work, inquiry in many counties revealed that fines collected on traffic cases frequently equalled or exceeded the appropriations for traffic patrols.

With over 200 men patrolling the highways of Wisconsin and carrying on safety educational work through schools and civic organizations, state highway commission officials believe 1938 should see some reduction in the number of serious accidents and fatalities, despite the expected increase in gasoline consumption and traffic.

New Army on Wheels and Wings Forms U. S. Second Defense Line

(Editor's note: This is the second of a series of three articles analyzing America's defenses.)

BY ALEXANDER R. GEORGE
Washington—Back of Uncle Sam's battle fleets is the nation's secondary defense—coast artillery and fortifications, a small but highly mobile army and an increased potent air force.

Isolated from potential enemy countries in Europe and Asia and on very friendly terms with neighboring Canada and Mexico, the United States has not felt that it needed a huge peacetime conscript army such as places a tremendous financial burden on nearly every other major country.

Since this peace-minded nation has depended primarily on a stalwart navy to hold off an aggressor, the secondary defense has been a comparatively weak link in the line of resistance to possible enemy attack.

However, there has been a steady strengthening of the army since the waning of international disarmament hopes about five years ago. Still small in numbers, it is rated by the army high command as more efficient today than at any other period in its peace-time history.

New Planes Built

There has been tremendous progress in professional skill, mobility, modernization of weapons and equipment. Seacoast defenses are being modernized, tanks and motorized artillery are high speed, infantry with semi-automatic shoulder rifles are being reorganized in new, streamlined battalions.

Most striking advances have been in aircraft. The army now has 1,000 new planes, and another 1,000 under order. The 1,000 new planes are rated on a par in efficiency with those of any power and the new "flying fortresses" are said to be the most formidable bombers in the world. The air defense goal is 3,320 modern airplanes, to be attained by June, 1940.

Present strength of the regular army is some 12,000 officers and 168,000 enlisted men. The army's idea of an "irreducible minimum" defense is 14,600 officers and 165,000 men. National guard troops number 192,000, the defense objective being 210,000.

Congress has been appropriating nearly a half billion dollars yearly to strengthen the army. Military experts say, however, that an expenditure of about $150,000,000 on materials is needed now to bring

Comparative Airplane Strength
Great Britain	4,000
United States	2,200
Japan	2,000
France	3,600
Italy	3,200
Germany	3,000
Russia	3,400

(Estimates on manpower and planes from Washington sources)

army defense up to "comfortable security" stage.

Probably the most important development in the secondary defense since the World war has been the building up of an Officer's Reserve corps, now 96,500 strong. Carefully worked out defense plans call for a speedy, wartime expansion of the army with these reserve officers providing a valuable training nucleus for hundreds of thousands of recruits.

Our artillery, mostly of the French 75 type, which is being modernized for high speed towage, ranks well with other nations. French artillery technique, however, has long been rated the world's finest.

U. S. anti-aircraft guns are among the best but the supply, army officers say, is not satisfactory. No particular plans, it is said, have been made for use of gas as a weapon but the army has concentrated on gas defense and developed a satisfactory mask.

Railway artillery and other big guns, which can be moved quickly, protect threatened areas between fixed coast defenses. Supplementing these in swift defense service is the new General Headquarters Air force which by 1940 is slated to reach full strength of 1,000 up-to-the-minute combat planes.

This mighty sky-squadron, under a single, centralized command, is prepared for swift, emergency action at any danger point. If New York, Seattle or other "frontier" spot were menaced by enemy warships or planes, a powerful unit of the GHQ would be immediately concentrated for their defense.

Intensive motorization, plus excellent highways, has made troop movement to most sectors of the country incredibly fast compared with World war standards. Tanks, anti-aircraft guns as well as the motorized field, artillery, infantry and machine gun units can be moved rapidly to strategic positions.

BORAH AND RYAN ON THE GEIGER CASE

Senator Borah's condemnation of the Attorney General because of the Judge Geiger dispute is consistent with that gentleman's long and loyal service to the republic and his devotion to principles that should be as sacred in an auto or airplane age as in the disgraceful period of the horse and buggy.

Nothing, Senator Borah insists, could be more certain to stimulate disrespect for law by great corporate wealth than the ability to fix the case up with the Attorney General after the net begins to close and the breathing becomes hard.

Had Mr. Cummings graduated from the Connecticut justice courts a little earlier to become Attorney General of the United States and ruled that department during the life of prohibition he might have terminated the rampant devilry of fellows like Capone and Legs Diamond by holding grand jury indictments off while they consented to an injunction forbidding them from misconducting themselves again. And it is hard for the common fellow to understand why this system was not employed, too, upon the Touhys and the other hardboiled kidnapers.

But Mr. Cummings is a gay and light-hearted crusader and Judge Geiger is a dour and ancient mossback. The one supports the New Deal philosophy with its primary plank: Abolish the past and every rule that has developed under it. The other clings to the proven past as the savior of the present and the future.

These superficial liberals might have improved their technique as well as their minds if they studied the laborious writings of the early and clear-quill liberals. We had such a one on the supreme court of Wisconsin in the 1870's. His name was Ryan and he was chief justice. He inspired many young men to uphold the banner of straight dealing in politics. He, it was, who wrote that famous article so long quoted by liberals in Wisconsin and which begins, "Which shall rule, men or money?"

It now appears from the records that Judge Geiger quoted Chief Justice Ryan to sustain his action at Milwaukee for Ryan had written in relation to a somewhat similar situation which arose more than fifty years ago:

"Is it true that the paltry officers of the revenue service may lose the judicial hold upon extortioners, thieves, forgers and perjurers, baffling justice and defying punishment upon the ground that the guilty have paid a price for the privilege of their guilt, a sordid substitute for benefit of clergy?"

"The provision for compounding public offenses is essentially immoral; beyond all statutory power to purge it; tainting the whole statute." If the charges at Milwaukee were true certain finance companies literally choked business into submission, picked its pockets, kicked competitors into insensibility, and left the scene of the attack with several millions in their jeans. As ointment for all these wounds the attorney general of the United States consented to withhold criminal indictments if the culprits would agree, not to give back their ill gotten gains, but that they would comport themselves in a more dignified manner in the future.

That was the bone of contention. And we rather think that about nine men out of ten will breathe their satisfaction that the judiciary still contains men who won't stand for such sordid deals.

HIS HEAD WAS WORKING

New York papers recently carried a prominent advertisement by a fur shop as follows:

"My offer of 10 points advance on stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange in trade for my fine fur garments met with a most unexpected response. I am continuing my offer which is this—I believe that stocks will advance—if your stock is listed on the New York Stock Exchange at $40 or over I will give 10 points above daily stock quotations for each share taken in exchange for any fur garment that you may select in my store."

The novelty of the advertisement may have been a material aid in its success. The papers announced the furrier did a land office business. It was a good idea and good ideas are bound to get results.

But back of it all was a cleverness that outdrew the mere idea of stimulating business. The furrier realized fully that if the recession in business was to continue or increase luxuries, like the expensive furs, would likely drop in value substantially more than the average of the stocks.

JACKSON ON THE PRICE OF STEEL

Robert H. Jackson is not only an assistant attorney general of the United States but is a man who stands high in the favor of the Administration.

That is why his attack upon business for "pricing itself out of the market" assumed material proportions in the public eye.

We adhere to the conviction that it is a sound principle of democracy for the government to observe any irregularities in the conduct of business and when they are found to act forthwith with all lawful means provided.

But, at least as applied to Steel, it is a fair question whether the advances in the rate were fair and necessary, or if not why the government slept so long after they were made, waiting over a year after the announcement of price advance.

Mr. Jackson says that there was a 10 per cent wage increase in the steel mills but there was a 21 per cent increase in the price of steel. He makes no mention of any other cost factors in the production of steel.

Yet when wages are on the boom the up movement does not stop at steel mills but extends to mines. Mr. Jackson does not present us with a complete picture until we know how much the price of ore was boosted to the steel mills by increasing wages in mines, and the cost of carriage by increasing costs of navigation. Not long ago one great steel company printed the figure to show how its taxes had started climbing the golden stairs. Taxes, in fact, have now become one of the principal elements in every cost structure.

But in truth there is room for suspicion and perhaps an alluring novel of the business world might be written out of the way steel companies boosted the price of their product 21 per cent.

The black-haired villain in the story, rough and ready and cursing under his breath, would be none other than the country's old friend, John L. Lewis. He has a meeting with one Farrell, head of Big Steel. In the dialogue Mr. Lewis proposes peace and friendship so long as CIO, the darling of his heart, is recognized. Farrell is not so easy as his countenance might imply. He is deeper in fact than the Himalayas are high. A compact is made. CIO is recognized. Generous Big Steel issues a 10 per cent increase in wages. All is merry as a marriage bell. But the price of steel, of course, must be raised. And since Lewis and the CIO are content with their treatment, and they stand high with the Administration by virtue of a certain $600,000 transaction, would it not be perfidy for the government to step in and question the necessity of such a raise?

There is a great deal of room for inferences because we have not enough facts in definite shape. But we wish that Mr. Jackson the next time he takes the platform will tell us why a watchful government permitted a 21 per cent raise in the price of steel when there was, as he claims, no good reason for it, and it smelled of monopoly.

OUR STATUS WITH JAPAN

When an American river boat was destroyed in the heart of a great continent 10,000 miles from our shore we might expect great difficulty in gathering the facts accurately.

But the essential facts in the case of the Panay are now agreed upon between the American and Japanese governments. It is conceded that proper steps had been taken by the boat "to assure that the Japanese authorities were informed" of its movements and that the ship was plainly marked "by two large horizontal flags, one spread over the forward top deck and one over the after top deck, both clearly visible from the air at any angle."

The naval court of inquiry has also found that the Japanese officers, properly suspicious of the usual means of identification, boarded the Panay several hours before the attack and ascertained definitely the identity of the boat and its purpose. The attack took place shortly after noon while "the weather was clear, with good visibility and no wind," and it continued for about 45 minutes during which time airplanes circled and recircled dropping bombs and machine-gunning the vessel.

Thus is presented a case where the Japanese soldiers involved were undoubtedly wanton and deliberate in their acts knowing they were attacking an American boat that was rightfully there and manned by American seamen. Just as certainly does all evidence presently known indicate that no such attack was the deliberate purpose of the Japanese government.

Here then is a case to support the oft published story of the violence of the extremists, the die-hards, the professional warriors in the Japanese army, men who are so ingrained by perverted patriotism they would attack the entire world and bring the temple of their government down in ruins upon them.

Considering the usual language of diplomacy the Japanese reply to the President's protest is all that could be expected or desired. And the incident in all the completeness of its details and its satisfactory termination shows how far the world is getting away from declaring war every time a cause for war in the ancient sense exists.

The Chinese were the first printers. The European invention was independent of the Chinese discovery.

AS HE WAS SAYING YESTERDAY

And when it's raining and I'm cook and I serve a nice bowl of soup to any member of the party at the table who happens to be under a hole in the roof of the tent and the rain water runs into his soup faster than he eats it, and then complains about thin soup, well I don't want to be cook for no such party.

I'll do any thing once and I've been every place twice.

I'm sorry one of my chums spent one night in the Cranston jail.

It all comes from trying to crowd a 5-day season in a three-day limit.

Time will tell. Wait till you see if LaFollette gained any votes by it—

Ezekiel Sodbuster

Somebody asked the other day why no mention was made of the man who invented the machine to take the shine off trouser seats. It was only because of lack of space yesterday. Today comes the remark.

Taking the shine off trouser seats may be all very well and may be a great boon to mankind, but what does a guy wear while the trouser-shine remover is removing the shine from his trousers?

Which reminds me of an old song which had something to do with the caretaker's daughter, although I cannot tell you precisely why.

Rumors that a flotilla of Japanese submarines was maneuvering off the Southern California coast were about the other morning and were being played up by the press in that section. Californians, I am told, are great ones for worrying about the Japanese and maybe they have reason to feel that way, what with only nice weather to talk about. But it strikes me that they have less to worry about Japanese submarines off the California coast than, say, the British about Japanese submarines in the waters near Hong Kong.

Bringing to mind that everytime the Japanese capture an important Chinese city, we are faced with the fact that they have a couple of more to pick off.

THE NEW AGE

By first hand experience your correspondent has learned that a group of lads (all under high school age) have a standing argument on who can skate with the best girls on any given night at the rink near Edison school. Twenty-five is high for the year. Venturing there myself on a balmy night recently, I also learned that one of the lads won a nickel bet by skating around the rink with the wife of one of my pals. Such are the ways of youth today. At that age, I was afraid to skate with any girl.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

BIRDS ON WINTER DAYS

I feed the birds on winter days.
They come, like messengers of hope,
To bring me happy songs of praise
In spite of snow upon the slope.

They are so thankful for the crumbs
I throw them when the morning comes,
I find myself complaining less.
Thank God for crumbs of happiness!

Looking Backward

10 YEARS AGO

Wednesday, Dec. 28, 1927

Appleton merchants are unanimous in declaring that Christmas business during the last month was better than in December a year ago.

E. E. Fuller was elected Winnebago county treasurer at the opening session of the county board to take the place of Carroll H. Larabee, who died three weeks ago.

Miss Gertrude Pankratz, formerly of Menasha, who has been making her home in New York for several years, is now on the stage and is a member of the chorus in "Hit the Deck," a musical comedy now playing at Woods theater in Chicago.

Surprise specialty dances will be a feature of the Christmas dancing party of the Century club on Friday night at Elks hall. The committee in charge of arrangements for the party consists of Dr. and Mrs. L. H. Moore, Dr. and Mrs. J. L. Benton, Dr. and Mrs. W. J. Frawley, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Opinions Of Others

OF COURSE MARK SAID IT

Now comes Cyril Clemens, nephew of the late Samuel Clemens (Mark Twain) and denies that his famous uncle ever made the remark, "Everybody complains about the weather, but nobody does anything about it." When Mark Twain is debunked we begin to lose heart. Then we become indignant and resentful.

Cyril says the utterance about the weather was made by a newspaper writer, Charles Dudley Warner, and he adds that Warner collaborated with Mark Twain in the writing of "The Golden Age." If Warner made that remark about the weather it would never have caused a laugh. The statement is characteristic of Mark Twain.

The more we consider it the more certain we are that it will do no good to attribute it to Warner or anybody else. We shall just continue to believe that Mark Twain said it first. What Cyril says we shall completely ignore. It was Mark Twain that put that statement on the map, none other. We shall not stand by and behold a nephew attempt to debunk our greatest humorist without registering a protest. If we allow him to get by with this scurrilous, before we know it some one will be denying that Mark Twain wrote "Tom Sawyer" or "The Jumping Frog." We cannot afford to get careless about such matters. Warner may have been a fine writer, but who would care a whoop what he said about the weather?—Rock Island Argus.

Personal Health Talks

LESSONS IN PHYSIOLOGY

2. Peristalsis

A schedule of the normal course of food or food residue thru the alimentary canal:

7 a. m.—Breakfast

9:30 to 10 a. m.—Stomach digestion finished. Chyme passes into duodenum, thru pylorus or lower gateway of stomach, leaving stomach empty.

11 to 12 a. m.—Chyme is passing from duodenum on thru the jejunum into the ileum, the last part of small intestine.

2 p. m.—The food residue or waste—nearly all digestion has been completed, is now ready to pass thru the ileo-caecal valve into the colon or large bowel.

6 p. m.—Residue arrives at the first turn in the colon, under the liver, called the hepatic flexure.

2 a. m.—Residue reaches the second turn in the colon, near the spleen, called the splenic flexure.

8 a. m. to midnight of the second day.—Residue arrives at the end of sigmoid (S-shaped) part of colon or entrance to the rectum.

Normally none of the residue of a meal is expelled from the rectum until from 18 to 24 hours after the meal is eaten, and tests in many healthy persons have shown that the passage of the food thru the alimentary tract may require 40 hours.

Normally the rectum is always empty. The impulse or desire for evacuation is produced by the entrance into the rectum of food residue or waste from the sigmoid or pelvic portion of the colon.

The churning or wormlike movements of stomach and small intestine, creating happiness this day, the peristaltic movements of the large intestine or colon, all automatic and wholly beyond control or regulation by the will or by any medicinal or mechanical agents, are chiefly two or three daily vigorous onward thrusts or mass movements in which the fecal mass or masses are propelled thru the colon to the entrance of the rectum. These mass peristaltic movements are more likely to occur shortly after food or drink is taken into the stomach.

As soon as the fecal mass enters the rectum, the distension of the rectum gives rise to a perineal sensation and the desire to defecate. This accounts for the general habit of evacuation after breakfast.

All of these functions, like the regular beating of the heart, being controlled entirely by the autonomic, unconscious, involuntary nervous system, are most efficient when the individual does not watch or attempt to "regulate" or interfere with them.

Since it normally requires 40 to 48 hours for food residue, waste or perhaps a foreign body to pass thru the alimentary tract there is no occasion for anxiety if evacuation happens to be delayed for a day or two.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

X-Ray

What effect would X-ray have on the flesh if used too strongly? It was used in treating a skin disease and for taking a picture (J. S. J.).

Answer—No effect. The effect of overexposure is manifest by the skin. If there was no burn or similar effect, it will have had no effect on the flesh underneath. There is no risk of any untoward effect from the momentary exposure to X-ray for taking a picture.

Your Birthday

"CAPRICORN"

If December 30 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this day are from 9:30 to 11:30 A. M.; from 1:30 to 3:30 P. M., and from 7:30 to 9:30 P. M. The danger periods are from 7:30 to 9:30 A. M.; from 5:30 to 7:30 P. M., and from 9:30 to 11:30 P. M.

You must be hopeful this day, for only by having a sufficient amount of faith, and a firm conviction of your own ability will you master any difficult situation. No one can successfully play a double game this day. Many smooth-tongued excuses may be offered, but their plausibility is apt to be questioned. In some totally unexpected manner most personal needs will be met, and bothersome problems solved this day. Social activities should be helpful, for valuable contacts are likely to be made in this way. Married and engaged couples, as well as those whose hearts have been conquered by love, will find that praise and compliments are likely to work miracles in creating happiness this day.

If a woman and December 30 is your birthday, you might not appear to be, but in reality you probably are a deep thinker. You may find yourself best adapted for work along intellectual lines. Your love of excitement possibly will cause you to take some wild chances, perhaps in a business way. It will be best for you to avoid highly speculative ventures. You will prevent trouble if you are careful in signing documents or any agreement that might involve your future. As a store or office executive, author, artist, journalist, teacher, actress or broken your efforts are likely to be well rewarded.

Your matrimonial chances for happiness seem to be unlimited.

The child born on December 30 is generally of an exceptionally frank nature, with an almost unquenchable thirst for knowledge. Upon reaching maturity it seems likely to attain a position of eminence.

If a man and December 30 is your natal day, you seem to be destined to succeed so never get discouraged. As an agriculturalist, naturalist, engineer, architect, lawyer, doctor, painter, actor or sales representative Dame Fortune's smiles ought to make you a happy man.

Now let us turn to the horoscope of the day.

If a man and December 30 is your natal day, you seem to be destined to succeed so never get discouraged. As an agriculturalist, naturalist, engineer, architect, lawyer, doctor, painter, actor or sales representative Dame Fortune's smiles ought to make you a happy man.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—Excitement over the sinking of the Panay has driven war off page one—but here is the status of the battle up to this point:

Draw a circle, and it represents a rough map of China. From near the top of the circle draw a line straight down so as to cut off about the right one-third of the circle. That one-third is the important part of China. It is the part the Japanese evidently are intent on controlling.

At the top or north end of that up-and-down line is Peking—the Japanese now call it Peking again. Halfway down the line is Hankow, the new temporary capital of China. At the bottom of the line, on the south coast of China, is Canton. A railroad runs the full length of that line, from Peking through Hankow to Canton.

Northern Conquest Completed
Now about one-third the way down this rich piece of China we are talking about, draw a line across to represent the Yellow river. Virtually everything north of the Yellow river in this rich segment of China is already in the hands of the Japanese. They control the three railroad lines which drain it. They are setting up Japanese "advisers" to manage the local government.

As in Manchoukuo, far to the north, they likely enough will monopolize all commerce, simply by freezing out British, American and other competition. That part of the military campaign, so far as Japan is concerned, is already finished. The territory is conquered.

Now draw another line across this rich segment of China, about midway down. That line will connect Shanghai, on the east coast with Hankow, 500 miles inland on the important north-and-south railroad. The cross line will roughly follow the line of the Yangtze river, passing through Nanking, the abandoned capital, and Wuhu.

Southern Threat
Already the Japanese have penetrated inland from Shanghai through Nanking and Wuhu, a distance of 200 miles. There is a temporary calm while the Japanese reorganize and supply their offensive army. No students of the situation here doubt that Japan will go straight on to Hankow, another 300 miles. Then it will control the north half of this major north-and-south railroad.

There is a large segment of unconquered territory between the Yellow river on the north and the Yangtze river in the middle, but commercially it is largely dependent for outlet upon Shanghai and Peking.

Now let us move into the southern half of this rich one-third of China. Already the Japanese have begun an enveloping movement southward from Shanghai. The plan is to take the nearby important city of Hangchow (not Hankow) at the head of Hangchow bay.

Reliable reports also indicate that the Japanese are sending a fleet of troop ships south along the coast in the direction of Canton.

Capture of Canton would shut off the important British port of Hong Kong from access to the inland trade territory. When (or if) that is done, Japan will control every important outlet from the Chinese interior. Shanghai and the Yangtze river yet are technically free trading channels for all hands; but if Japan controls the railroads which parallel the river and branch out into the hinterland, how successfully can outsiders trade?

Body of Cripple Taken From Water at Oconto

Oconto, Wis. — (P)—The body of Henry Moes, 73, was found floating in the open water of a saw mill pond on the Oconto river here yesterday.

Coroner J. S. Dougherty was investigating. It was believed Moes, a paralytic cripple, had slipped and fallen into the water while walking along the river bank. He used a crutch and cane.

Mr. Jansen, spoke of rough fishing as a distinctly different sort of fishing than commercial fishing and please let me inform you that rough fishing is commercial fishing and regulated under no commercial laws within our state.

Now let us clear up our misunderstandings as to our conservation department. The conservation commission of our state regulates and

'Big Apple' Popular at Infant Welfare Circle's 9th Annual Charity Ball

THE "big apple" crashed the charity ball last night. Although small groups of young people were unobtrusively busy with the shuffling in several corners all evening, it was not until after midnight that the assembly as a whole forsook its more dignified steps and took the new dance craze to heart. Every time the orchestra began the strains of "The Big Apple" after that, scores of dancers gathered in a big circle and those less nimble left their tables to watch and applaud.

Always one of the most gala affairs of the holiday season, this year's charity ball was the ninth annual one sponsored by the Infant Welfare circle of the Appleton King's Daughters. It took place, as usual, at Rainbow Gardens, where Christmas trees with gaily colored lights and paper Santa Clauses added to the holiday atmosphere.

Mrs. William J. Frawley, general chairman of the event, came to the party in a simple white gown, as did also Mrs. William Kolb, another committee member. Mrs. Kolb's was of white crepe, trimmed

2 Churches Hold Annual Elections

ANNUAL reports were given and officers elected at meetings Tuesday at Greenville Zion church and Center Emmanuel Evangelical church. The Rev. C. M. Schendel, who served as chairman, also conducted the devotions.

At Zion church the term of church trustee for Harry Schroeder had expired, and he was reelected for a term of three years. The other trustees are Sam Mews and Harry Thiel. Miss Nora Letzke was reelected church pianist, and Mrs. Harry Schroeder was chosen as assistant. Erwin Schroeder was reelected for the year as custodian.

The congregation voted to dispose of the church sheds, the owners to be notified. It was further decided to beautify the church yard by leveling and reseeding and planting shrubs, and the trustees were instructed to keep in touch with the progress of the high line so that electric lights can be installed in the church.

At the Center church, Alfred Wirth was elected trustee to fill the expired term of William Uhlenbrauck, Jr. The other trustees are Charles Holz and William Langen. Mr. Uhlenbrauck was reelected cemetery trustee, the others being Alfred Wirth and Dewey Thiel. Mrs. Willis Schroeder was reelected church pianist, and Charles Holz was reelected for the year as custodian.

At its sister congregation, the Center church voted to dispose of its sheds upon notice to the owners. It also was voted that a mass meeting for cemetery lot owners and interested parties be held some time in March, 1938, at the Center church to discuss perpetual care of the cemetery. To build up the church treasury and redecorating fund, it was decided to have the annual chicken dinner proceeds be placed in that fund.

Nead Pleads Not Guilty of Killing Wood County Baby

Goes to Central Hospital For Insane Pending Court Session

Stevens Point — (P)—Arraigned here today before Circuit Judge Byron B. Park on a charge of first degree murder in connection with the Christmas day death of his 6-week-old foster son, Henry J. Nead, 19, of the town of Vesper, Wood county, pleaded innocent by reason of insanity.

Nead, who, Sheriff Henry Becker said, confessed he slapped the child's head at the behest of the taunting ghost of his dead father, was ordered committed to the state central hospital for the criminal insane at Waupun for observation until the first Monday in March, when the March term of circuit court convenes.

The commitment represented an agreement between the court and Nead's attorney, Marvin S. King. Court Appoints Lawyer

King was formally appointed by the court to represent Nead. Nead, apparently nervous during the arraignment, collapsed as he was escorted from the court room back to his county jail cell, preliminary to transportation to Waupun. He was carried in a faint down the two flights of stairs to the ground floor.

Following entry of Nead's plea, District Attorney Hugh W. Goggin had outlined for the court the facts of the death of Earl Albert, the child of Mrs. Luella Nead, 15-year-old wife of the defendant. The district attorney also submitted the confession, Sheriff Becker said Nead made to him—of arising from his bed Christmas morning and, impelled by the ghost of his father, dead six years, slapping the baby's head until it died.

Judge Park, questioning Nead directly, asked him his age and schooling. Nead answered that he was 19, had gone through the seventh grade and had quit school when he was 13.

Discuss Changes In Ton-Mile Tax

State Inspector Meets With Truck and Bus Owners On New Regulations

Changes in the state ton-mile tax for trucks and buses were discussed by James Morrissey, inspector for the state public service commission at a meeting of truck and bus owners last night at the courthouse.

One of the changes discussed was on the flat tax. Next year it is to be computed quarterly and paid in advance, while at the present time it is computed annually and paid quarterly.

Similar meetings will be held at Oshkosh tonight and at the city hall in New London Thursday evening.

Ireland Put Back on Map by Recent Ruling

Dublin, Ireland — (P)—Irish map makers for the second time in 16 years are junking their existing stocks and remaking the map of Ireland.

Before December 29, all maps of the island must be labeled "Ireland" instead of "Irish Free State," to comply with the official change recently ordered.

The previous change, was in 1921 when "Ireland" ceased to exist and became the "Irish Free State," under virtually independent rule, and "Northern Ireland," under British control.

British officials, it is reported, are contemplating designating Northern Ireland as Ulster to avoid confusion.

Lawyers Should be 'Statesmen,' Dean Says in Address

Garrison Thinks Legal Profession Can Solve Major Problems

Chicago — (P)—Dean Lloyd K. Garrison of the University of Wisconsin law school said today in a prepared address the public interest calls for lawyers who are "statesmen" as well as mastercraftsmen and perfecters of the administration of justice.

The former chairman of the national labor relations board spoke at the meeting of the Association of American Law Schools of which he is president.

He defined the statesman-lawyer as one who would "bring to bear on public affairs the same forbearance and understanding, the same devotion to the equitable adjustment of conflicts, and the same passion for facts, which he brings to bear on private affairs."

Legal Attitude

Upon the attitude of the legal order, Dean Garrison said, depended largely the solution of "difficulties precipitated by the industrial revolution and aggravated by war." The solution, he said, was being sought through legislation and administrative processes.

"We may approach legislation in two ways," he said. "We may regard it as the work of ignorant men swayed by prejudice and pressure, to be opposed almost as a matter of course and to be challenged as unconstitutional whenever there seems to be a straw to lean upon, or we may accept its inevitability; try to understand its causes and objectives and pool our special skill and knowledge in efforts to make it as scientific, fair and practical as possible."

"We may approach the administrative process in similar ways. We may decry the growth of administrative tribunals as the selfish reaching out of inexperienced bureaucrats for power, or we may accept them as unavoidable outgrowths of a changing world, study their problems with an open mind, and join in constructive efforts to make this latest development of the legal mechanism as efficient and just as possible."

King George Accepts Golden Majesty Cup

London — (P)—King George VI has accepted a golden "cup of majesty" symbolizing "the majesty and dignity of the throne" and illustrating the history of the British crown.

The royal crest surmounts the cover of the cup, and the coat of arms and the garter decorate the body. The position of handles is occupied by the supporting lion and unicorn, sculptured in flat relief.

On the reverse are the crown and the initials "G. R." and "E. R."

The cup stands on a Devon marble plinth carved in nine steps, representing the dynasties of the kings and queens of Britain since Saxon Egbert. The cup itself symbolizes the house of Windsor.

The period in which each dynasty occupied the throne is shown by a small gold plaque.

The cup is the work of Frank Dobson, a British sculptor. It is the gift of the Holyrood Amenity Trust, and will be kept at the Palace of Holyroodhouse in Scotland.

Britain Approves of Fox Hunting in Spain

London — (P)—Anthony Eden has told Commons it's all right with His Majesty's government if the Royal Calpe Hunt at Gibraltar wants to chase its foxes in Spain again.

Laborites have been bothered about the hunt club's negotiations with General Francisco Franco on this grave matter.

Eden quoted a letter from the governor of Gibraltar to the president of the hunt, who already had received Franco's "gracious" permission to resume tallyhoing.

"This is another historic example of sports and sportsmanship rising above bitterness and strife," the governor said.

He also cautioned the hunters to be careful about any Spanish citizens who might get in the way.

Expert Says Good Speech Should be Unobtrusive as a Man's Clothes

New York — (P)—Either either or either is correct, but the American who uses either (eye-ther) instead of either (ee-ther) is taking a chance and likely to seem silly unless he pronounces path, pawth, instead of path.

Prof. Lee Norville, head of the speech department of Indiana university, and a man who can change his speech as readily as his hat, used the "either-either" example to illustrate his argument that good speech should be as unobtrusive as a man's clothes.

The professor, who was born in the south, went to Oxford, lives in the middle west and has no noticeable accent of any kind, is here to attend the convention of the National Association of Teachers of Speech.

And while confessing it sounded like heresy—a good many speech teachers would call it that, he said—Norville insisted that the radio and the talking pictures have done more than teachers to make speech uniformly good and to bring good speech to millions.

What are the most commonly mispronounced words?

"Not the big ones you're thinking of," he said, "but easy ones like 'was,' 'get,' 'because,' 'catch' and 'just.' People say 'wuz' and 'git' and 'becoz,' 'kelch' and 'jest' instead of giving the words their real vowel sounds. Yet the correct way is as easy as the wrong way."

He prefers a combination of the soft drawing southern speech and the crisp, more precise eastern speech.

Orders Return of Stock to Estate

Failure to Disclose All Facts on Sale Prompts Court Ruling

Fond du Lac — (P)—County Judge L. E. Lurvey ordered yesterday the return of 747 shares of common stock in the Enz Realty company, Sheboygan, to the state of the late John F. Enz. Judge Lurvey's decision followed a case he recently tried at Sheboygan.

Six heirs to the Enz estate charged in a suit that the sale of the stock for $30,100 to Attorneys A. Matt Werner and E. H. Clemens, and the late Edward R. Bowler, all of Sheboygan, were fraudulent because Bowler also was an attorney for the bank of Sheboygan, which, with Mrs. Ella Enz, widow, was executor of the estate.

The court held that although the bid for purchase of the stock had been submitted in the names of Werner and Clemens, the stock actually was transferred to the Bowler Realty company.

Judge Lurvey said "while the executors and attorneys are guilty of no intentional fraud, the fact that they failed to disclose to the court that Bowler was interested in the purchase of the stock makes necessary the vacating and setting aside of the previous order of final settlement."

Enz was killed in an auto accident in 1934. He left his estate to his widow, four brothers and two sisters, and Mrs. Enz's brother and sister.

Council Created Board To Supervise Utilities

(Editor's note: This year marks the golden jubilee of Kaukauna's incorporation as a city. This is the seventeenth in a series of articles tracing the history of Kaukauna from early times.)

Kaukauna—By 1912 the community enterprises of Kaukauna—the municipal water works and electric light plant—had developed to such an extent that the council saw fit to create a board of public works to supervise them. This was done under a provision of the state law, which provided that any city owning a lighting plant or waterworks may cause them to be operated under the direction of a board or under the direction of a commission. The board, to be appointed by the council, was to consist of three citizens of Kaukauna, the mayor, and one alderman. The three citizens were to be chosen by ballot. As the years passed, gradual changes were made until the composition of the board, until at present it consists of the city clerk, city attorney, the chairman of the sewer committee and the north and south side road commissioners.

Council Retains Power
The board was not given complete control over the policies to be followed in regard to the municipal holdings. The council retained the power to legislate on all matters with reference to the construction, purchase, operation, management and protection of the water and electric projects, provided all such legislation was approved by a three-fourths vote of the body. The city was empowered to acquire by purchase additional plots of land as may be necessary to the development of the two utilities. It was provided that all income from electricity and water rents should be collected by the city treasurer, and the balance remaining, if any, after paying the principal and interest of any indebtedness created in the project's construction, be paid into the general fund. Rates were to be uniform in all parts of the city.

Leaders Will Clash in Fraternal Pin League

Kaukauna—Bowling will be resumed tonight in the Fraternal bowling league with the first place Knights of Columbus team meeting the second place Moose five in the feature match of the evening. Other matches have the Masons opposing the Molochs, the Greenwoods against the Hollandtown Knights of Columbus, and the Elks playing the Foresters.

Estimates of the total population of China range from 331,000,000 to 498,000,000.

Trade Rights in China Will be Tough Problem

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—A lot of us have been talking about the weather since the Japanese sank the Panay in recognition of the fact that the president has stood up to one of the most reckless and notorious guys in the world and said, in not much different words, "One more move out of you and leg or a half-brick just in case, and everybody will be relieved now to see that he has made the Japanese back away."

The president's Chicago speech about the dictators and the idea of a quarantine around the crazy countries was a different matter. In that case he was just sounding off. His remarks didn't commit the nation, and he soon discovered that he had overspoken himself, for public opinion didn't go along with him.

But when the president puts a direct challenge in writing the situation becomes grim, and in his affair with the Japanese he was so dead right and the Japanese were so dead wrong that it would have been a serious disservice to give the Japanese ambassador any ground for reporting back to Tokyo that he was speaking only for himself, or at least for a country which wouldn't back him up.

But now that that is over, how about examining the conditions which led to the trouble? How come we to have a naval station and warships and soldiers and marines in a country which is supposed to be a competent nation and friendly to us? Could we permit the British and Germans, the Japanese, Italians and Chinese to divide up New York into little outposts of their respective nations, each with a garrison, and to keep naval vessels in the Hudson river to protect their interests? And if we did, wouldn't that be an admission that we weren't sovereign in our own country? And isn't it one of the facts of life that any country which can't take its own part or doesn't take a stand for protective purposes and make at least an effort to be a nation eventually gets taken over by one that can and does?

Any Government Would be Improved in China

The Japanese are poor but proud and ambitious, and, seeing a great spread of geography going to waste close to their own country, have decided to take China for the same reason that the British took over everything that wasn't nailed down, the same reason that Mussolini took Abyssinia and the same reason that we took this country from the Indians. After the big war the successful muscled decided that it would be a nice thing, now that they had all they could use, for everybody to turn square and agree not to do that any more, not forgetting, however, to swipe the colonies which the Germans had stolen in the same way, as a prior condition to the great reform. It is a common practice. Rockefeller didn't turn philanthropist until he had more than he could use or even count.

It isn't nice of Japan to steal other countries, but that is what she is doing, and we know it, and when we read of a land whose people for centuries have been unable to

Today and Tomorrow

BY WALTER LIPPMAN

Newton Diehl Baker

The first time I ever talked with Newton Baker was on a late afternoon in March, 1916. He had arrived in Washington that morning, had left his suit case at his club, and had just returned to his room after taking the oath as Secretary of War in President Wilson's cabinet. He was such a small, soft-speaking gentleman. It was so queer that he should have been placed in charge of an army during the World War. No one knew better than he how incongruous it was—that he, the friend and disciple of Mayor Tom Johnson, a life-long reformer and pacifist, should have become the civilian head of the American Army at that moment. "I must begin," he told me, "by signing the orders which will send General Pershing into Mexico."

I thought how strange it all was until he began to talk about Mexico. He talked for a long time, and gradually it dawned upon me that somehow, though he had had only a few days to consider the president's invitation, he had already acquired a most extraordinarily detailed knowledge of Mexican history and of the revolutionary social conditions which had led to the raid and to the existing crisis. How he had learned so much I never found out. For he could not possibly have had the time which an ordinary man would have needed to learn what he already knew about issues so far removed from his personal experience.

Later on, while working for a few months as a member of his personal staff, I came to see that his great gift was a most unusual capacity to select and absorb the data of a problem—and to master it intellectually and see it in all its four dimensions. He knew what he was doing at all times. He never seemed to act on guesses and hunches and by improving; always in important matters he seemed to have a lucid and orderly conception not only of the immediate question but of its history and of what he thought were the lessons of experience. I used to see him frequently, often late at night, during the agitated summer of 1917, and always the calmest spot in Washington was his office. Almost daily he was making difficult and dangerous decisions but never did he seem hurried. Always he seemed deliberate. Always he was judicial. Once he had mastered a problem in his own mind, he was able to abide by his own decision with an unwavering spirit.

He Kept Distinctions Clear in All Matters

It was this ability to deal with issues intellectually, free of all personal anxiety about the consequences to himself, that made him so great a civilian administrator in time of war. For everywhere it is now known that he was a great Secretary of War, undoubtedly the greatest this country has ever had in time of war. The most serious charge that was brought against him was that he did not develop military preparedness in the year before the United States entered the war and that charge is easily answered. He made, as General Johnson has testified, the plans for mobilization. But it was Mr. Wilson's business, not Mr. Baker's, to decide how much military preparation there should be while the United States was still a neutral. In Mr. Baker's strictly constitutional and democratic philosophy the Secretary of War must follow loyally the president in matters of high policy just as the soldiers must follow the Secretary of War.

At no matter what cost to himself in the way of personal popularity he was always uncompromisingly true to his understanding of the principles which must govern the relations between an army and the civilian authorities. With unerring lucidity of mind he made his decisions with full knowledge of what was the business of the Secretary and what was the business of the General Staff and of the commander in the field. He kept the distinctions clear in all matters and at all times, in executing his conception in his selection of Pershing, in his dealings with Colonel Theodore Roosevelt and General Wood, in the relations with the Allies. He was always simple, always lucid, always definite, and never undecided after he had made his decision.

Had Thorough Grasp Of The Army's Place

That made him a great administrator, and the testimony of the soldiers came at last to be unanimous on that point. But he was more than a great administrator. Because he had such thorough grasp of the place of an army in a democratic state, he was able to raise the largest army in our history and then to demobilize it without fastening upon the nation the curse of militarism. It might easily have been otherwise. For almost always in history a victorious army comes home to conquer its own people; the army of Wilson and Baker was quickly dissolved, however, in the civilian population from which it had been drawn.

That this happened was due principally to Mr. Baker's iron resolution, taken at the very beginning, that it should happen. Often I heard him say, even at the most critical moments of the struggle, that he was the civilian head of the army, and that he would not forget that after the war there would again be peace. He knew very well that it is dangerous for a democracy to go to war because in winning a victory it may so easily lose its own soul. The great good fortune of this country was that Mr. Baker understood this clearly. And so, if this army did not make the world safe for democracy, it did in any event do nothing to make this country unsafe for democracy.

Gave Up Power With Little Personal Regret

Mr. Baker, it always seemed to me, had the exceptional strength of an almost selfless man. I do not know of any public man in our time who rose to such heights of power with so little personal ambition, or gave up power so easily and with so little personal regret. He had many enemies, but he himself was almost without enmity. He was one of the kindest, most considerate, and magnanimous human beings of our time. He had no vanity, no resentments, and no sense. I think that he had been called to a high place at a great moment in history and that he had the chance to carve out for himself a memorable career and a resounding reputation. He seemed, rather, to take a certain satisfaction in the notion that he, who had to send men to the trenches to face mutilation and death, should not, in his place of physical safety, be enjoying the triumphs of his power.

I have always thought, too, and from stray remarks which I have heard him make in later years I feel sure I am right, that the real reason he retired from public life, though he was obviously the heir of Wilson and for long the first Democrat in the land, was that he could not bear the thought of making personal capital out of his career in the war. In 1932 when he came so near to the nomination for the Presidency, he was almost perversely unhelpful to his enthusiastic friends. For in the depths of his spirit there was a humility about the terror of the war and a pity about the sacrifices of the men who had gone to France which made him feel, I believe, that he could exploit no part of it, and that to do anything which brought him profit and glory from it would be unseemly.

We shall not often see a man of his quality, and those who had the great decisions for him loved him and will think of him as one of the most unworldly men who ever in our time played so great a part in the world.

The Year In Sports: VII Shute Only Golf Champ to Repeat

BY BILL BONI

NEW YORK — (AP) — There's a strong possibility that the year 1937 will go down in the history of American golf as the last campaign in which championship aspirants were permitted the use of unlimited arsenals. On January 1, 1938, the United States Golf Association rule cutting championship equipment to 14 clubs will go into effect.

While they had the chance, the 1937 club-swingers made good use of the weapons at their disposal. They blasted all but one of the 1936 national title-holders loose from their moorings, drew sufficient galleries to give the U.S.G.A. a "pleasingly profitable" year, contested U. S. titles in areas that never before had witnessed a championship, and gained the first Ryder cup victory ever won by a visiting team.

Long repeating champion, and therefore worthy of a special niche in the links hall of fame, was Densmore Shute, the modest, methodical shot-maker from Massachusetts. Having won the 1936 P.G.A. crown in November at Pinehurst, Denny made sure he wouldn't be the most short-lived champion on record by surviving this year's renewal in May at Pittsburgh.

Goodman and Guldaiah Win "G-men" knocked off the two other principal crowns, Johnny Goodman and Ralph Guldaiah, both of whom had been rapping on the throne-room door for several years, finally broke it down this summer. Omaha Johnny waded through a strong field at Portland, Ore., and staved off a game rally by Ray Billows of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., in the final round to win the amateur title he'd been trying for since 1929. Slope-shouldered Guldaiah set up a new 72-hole record of 281 in winning the open at Birmingham, Mich.

crowns also were taken over by new members of golf's royal family. Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page, pupil of 1936 open champion Tony Manero and a hard hitter from Chapel Hill, N. C., succeeded Britain's undefeated Pam Barton at Memphis, Tenn. Bruce McCormick, Los Angeles fireman, came out on top of the pay-as-you-play heap at San Francisco.

The awarding of the amateur and women's tournames, marked a new step in U.S.G.A. policy. The Pacific northwest and the deep south never before had staged national championships.

Americans were less fortunate in Britain's two major tours. The open went to Henry Cotton while the amateur was won by Robert Sweeney, American-born but too long a resident of England to be dubbed a truly American golfer.

Beyond these high-spots, the year in golf produced such events as the further development of brilliant young professionals like Slammin' Sam Snead, West Virginia sensation; the successful introduction of the Belmont, Mass., $12,000 match play open, won by another youngster, Slim Byron; Nelson of Texas and Reading, Pa., who also won the Augusta Masters; Harry Cooper's usual reign as top money-winner; the fine showings of such young amateurs as Billows and Wilford Wehrle, western amateur winner, and the development of a prize crop of girl golfers headed by Virginia Guilfoyle of Syracuse, N. Y.

Gophers, N. Y. U. Battle Tonight

Minnesotans Rated Greatest Team Ever to Invade N. Y. Garden

New York — (AP) — Minnesota and Stanford two boisterous invaders, make the second stand of their metropolitan junket tonight at Madison Square Garden where they meet New York University and Long Island University.

Minnesota and N.Y.U. are unbeaten, but the Gophers who got by L.I.U. Monday night and who are hailed as the greatest team ever to invade the Garden, have the edge. The Violets, as yet undefeated, have a wealth of material, but no one knows how they will fare in fast company.

Budge Redeems Himself By Defeating Crawford

Sydney, Australia — (AP) — Don Budge, American national tennis singles champion, redeemed himself today before 12,000 cheering fans by soundly whipping Jack Crawford of Australia, 7-5, 6-1, 6-1, in an exhibition match.

Budge's terrific service overwhelmed Crawford in the last two sets after Crawford's accuracy and lengthy placements gave him a good fight in the first.

The crowd's bitterness of Monday over Budge's lackadaisical play with Germany's Baron Gottfried Von Cramm changed as the red-headed Californian flashed many aces past the bewildered Australian.

Report Pitt Grid Coach Will Resign

May Take Post at University of Southern California

New Orleans — (AP) — An abrupt "ab-olutely false" was "Jock" Sutherland's comment today on reports he would resign his long-held post as coach of the University of Pittsburgh's football team.

Sutherland, here for a national coaches' meeting, was reached by newsmen early today for the first time since publication of the resignation report in Pittsburgh yesterday and he lost no time in making his flat denial.

He indicated a desire to know where the rumors originated but beyond that would not comment on the situation.

Pittsburgh — (AP) — The realm of the mighty Golden Panther of the University of Pittsburgh awaited today a reply from the man who boosted it to national prominence—Jock Sutherland — for an answer to a rumor he would resign as head football coach.

The story had been whispered here for weeks but Harry Keck, sports editor of the Sun-Telegraph, brought it into the open with a declaration that Sutherland "was reported to have lost favor with Chancellor John G. Bowman and other administration officers" at the university's sky-scraper, cathedral of learning.

Keck added he had been informed by a source he did not disclose that the canny Scot who came to this country an immigrant boy, and received his education and his opportunity to make good at the university "was virtually signed to succeed Howard Jones as coach at the University of Southern California beginning with the 1939 season."

Neither university would admit nor deny the report. Officials of the University of Pittsburgh would not comment. At Southern California it was pointed out that Jones' contract would not expire until March and that there would be no comment until then.

Begin Tapering Off Process for Bowl Grid Tilts

Alabama Captain Will Wear Mask to Protect Injured Eye

By the Associated Press

T HE tapering off process starts today for the 12 squads engaged in Saturday's extra-season football warfare. Climatic conditions, injuries and hordes of inquisitive spectators constituted the main worries of the assorted coaches as the teams went into the last phase of training.

The news from the fronts: Rose Bowl—Secrecy is the keynote at Pasadena with both Alabama and California working behind locked gates. Henry Sparks, reserve end, is still limping and the Bears may not be able to use him Saturday. From Alabama's hideout comes word that Captain Leroy Monks' eye injury will be protected by a special mask.

The Crimson Tide is one up in scouts. Alabama's president, Dr. Richard C. Foster, watched the Bears drill yesterday.

Aerial Attack Sugar Bowl—Louisiana State refurbished its aerial attack, its best weapon this season, for the meeting with Santa Clara. The fact that Coach Bernie Moore chose to spend the last real scrimmage on aerial plays yesterday strengthened the belief that the Tigers will strike through the air against the Broncos. Cotton Bowl—Rice held its final strident workout yesterday in heavy rain, which lengthened the odds on Rice. The Owls have three complete backfields to pit against Wrizzer White, Colorado's one-man attack. Both teams expect to ease down today after long drills yesterday.

Orange Bowl—Coach Jack Meagher says his three teams of Auburn Plainsmen are "ready" but there's only a loud moan from Michigan State's Charlie Bachman in answer. While Bachman ordered more energy and thought in rehearsals, Meagher announced "We're ready, all but polishing up."

Sun Bowl—Emmett Moan, West Virginia's towering halfback, continues to amaze Texans with his passing — no mean feat. Texas Tech's own passer, Gene Barnett, was outstanding yesterday, too, which indicated an aerial battle at El Paso. Coach Marshall Glenn of the West Virginians is vexed by his team's light headedness as it nears the end of training.

East-West—Coaches Bernie Bierman and Andy Kerr of the East team ruled out lateral passes, a favorite weapon at Minnesota and Colgate yesterday, on the ground that the players had not worked together enough. The West coaches, on the other hand, came out squarely for "any plan that will gain a yard." Neither side has decided on starting backfields or lines.

Alumni Defeat Varsity Team in Overtime Battle

Grads Eke Out 24 to 23 Decision After Trailing in First Half

New London — The alumni finished on top, 24 to 23, in an exciting overtime battle when the alumni team defeated the varsity team in a game played at the Washington High gym last night.

The Stacymen started out with a classy brand of ball and led 11 to 4 at the end of the first quarter and 15 to 9 at the half but as the graduates became organized in the third quarter they gained a 16 to 15 lead, were forced back to 21-17 by the opening of the last period, and tied up the score in the last half minute of play after a hectic scramble for the ball.

The game was fast with frequent rough spots as indicated by the fouls. The former high school cagers displayed some nice floor work but couldn't find the basket in the early part of the game. Charlie Nader, the alumni player, appeared in his former star fashion and dumped four buckets, three for ones, besides two gift shots for 10 points. Jim Mesnick on the varsity netted three goals and four free throws for the same record. Each team missed eight free throws.

Appearing with the graduates were Herman Platte, Charlie Nader and Wendell Enos at forward, Bob Yost at center and Leon Plaski and Melvin Glock at guard. Plaski is a graduate of two years ago, now at LaCrosse. The alumni used the zone defense while the Stacymen played man to man.

11 to 4 at Quarter
The game started on fouls, Hoier counting one bucket and Polaski two to give the challengers a short-lived 2 to 1 lead. Hoier followed with a long shot from the free line and Jim Mesnick converted one on Yost's foul. Meinhardt sank a distance attempt and Mesnick hit the hoop for another charity shot for a 7 to 2 margin. Nader got in his familiar one-handed push shot for an alumni bucket but after some neat passing across the court Mesnick sank another goal. Taking the lead, the alumni immediately Mesnick again dribbled down the floor to toss in one more at the end of the quarter, score 11 to 4.

An exchange of gift shots brought the tally to 12-7 early in the second period and after attempts at long shots another passing display netted a bucket for the Stacymen when Mesnick whipped the ball to Stern and Stern to Meinhardt for the goal. Soon afterwards Polaski dumped one from underneath and when Hammerberg made good on a gift shot the half ended 15 to 9.

Enos replaced Platte on the alumni squad in the third period and the graduates began an aggressive drive to the basket. Mesnick succeeded with a long toss from the side and then Enos dribbled through the defense for another. Again Nader swished a toss from the ring of the center circle to tie the score at 15-15. Enos collected a gift shot off Meinhardt to put the alumni ahead, 15-16.

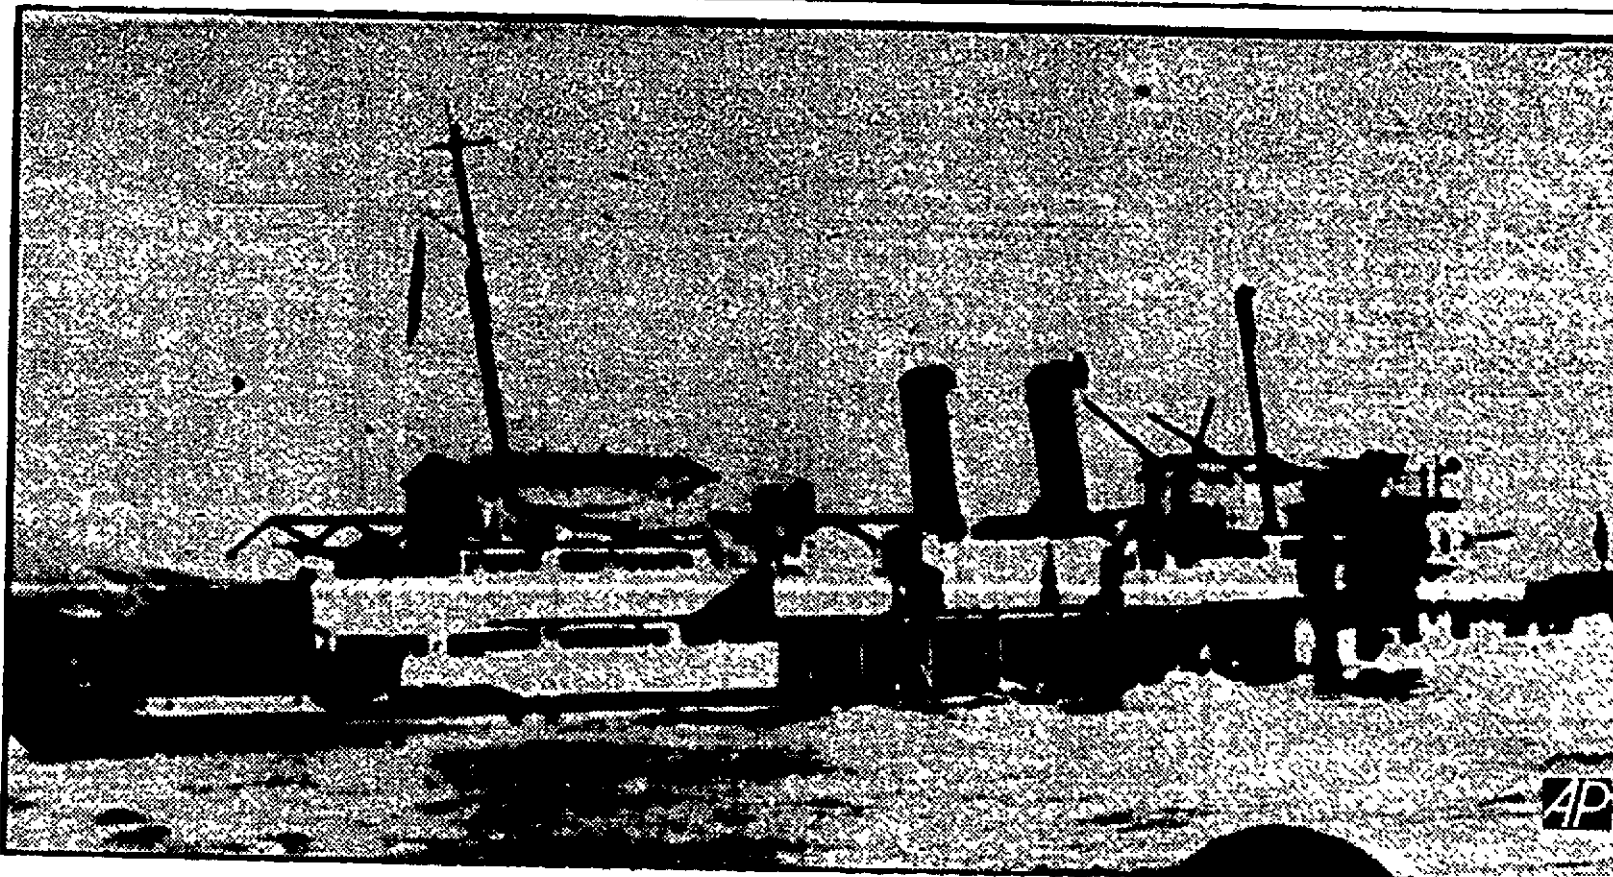

Scramble for Ball
After both sides muffed free throws, Mesnick regained the margin with a good one. Hoier, wide open, caged a bucket for a 2-point lead. Yost scored again on a foul. After a rough and wild scramble for the ball Mesnick took a pass from Stern to crouch the lead and Hoier converted a foul to end the stanza 21 to 17.

The Stacymen appeared to be rattled in the last period when the older boys did all the scoring. Nader counted on another long shot and Enos dumped one from underneath in the last half minute of the game to tie at 21-21. At the opening of the overtime game Polaski dribbled in easily for a 21 to 23 lead and the alumni followed led only to fouls. Mesnick added a point on one opportunity, Nader nullified it, and Hoier counted another off Yost just before the final whistle. Glock left the game on fouls during the overtime.

A 12-man squad divided ranks for a preliminary and in a close contest the Whites beat the Reds, 18 to 17. Kuehmstedt Outlines History of Paint at Lions Club Meeting

New London—Paint, its historical background, composition and uses was outlined for the New London Lions club yesterday noon by A. O. Kuehmstedt, Appleton, at the regular luncheon meeting at the Elwood hotel.

IT'S ODD But It's Science

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
AP Science Editor

Philadelphia—A labyrinth in the eye, more intricate than the Minotaur's cave, has been solved by H. K. Hartline of the Johnson Foundation, University of Pennsylvania. The eye labyrinth is the thousands of nerve fibers, which together give sight. Dr. Hartline discovered how to isolate a single fiber, attach it to an electric circuit, and find out how it reports to the brain.

He found that single fibers flash different sorts of signals. One kind sends a light when it is first switched on, and then stops seeing. Another sees the light as long as it is on. A third apparently never sees light while shining, but only afterward.

This last fiber is responsible for the image of light which a person thinks he sees momentarily when light is followed by instantaneous darkness, or immediately after closing the eyes.

The nerves which see only momentarily when light is switched on are responsible for the impression of extra brightness that makes the eyes blink. After the curtain-raising nerves stop, the extra brightness fades and the eye is said to "adapt" itself.

Traffic Deaths in 1937 Expected to Set All-Time High

National Safety Council Estimates Total at 40,000

Chicago (A)—The National Safety council predicted today that traffic deaths in the nation during 1937 would approximate 40,000, an all-time high.

Ever mounting, the traffic toll was 37,800 in 1936, and 37,000 in 1935, the council said.

During the first 11 months of 1937 traffic deaths numbered 35,610, a 6 per cent increase over the toll in the corresponding period of 1936.

On a mileage basis, the council reported, there has been "no actual increase in the traffic death rate." Gasoline consumption, the means of estimating mileage, increased 6 per cent, approximately the same as traffic deaths for the 11-month period.

There were 4,290 persons killed in December, 1936. Traffic deaths during the current month would have to show a 50 per cent reduction to keep the year's total as low as that in 1936. The council said statistics showed such a decrease was "out of the question."

The year's statistical picture of highway slaughter disclosed few bright spots. One was the 10 per cent drop in November as compared with the preceding month and with the same month a year ago. Another was a report showing 17 states had fewer traffic deaths in 1937 than last year.

The council reported 11,960 pedestrian traffic deaths for the first 10 months of the year, the latest figures available. This represented a 6 per cent boost over the number of the corresponding 1936 period.

More favorable safety records were compiled during the first 10 months of 1937 by children than by their elders. There were 8 per cent fewer deaths among children under five in 1937 than in 1936, between 15 and 24, a 9 per cent boost in the 25 to 64 year age group, and a 17 per cent rise among persons over 65.

Everett, Wash., with a population of 31,100, was the largest city in the nation having no traffic deaths for the first 11 months of 1937. Milwaukee held the leadership among cities with more than 500,000 population. The Wisconsin metropolis had a traffic death rate of 10.4 per 100,000 population. The average for cities of its class was 17.7.

Expect Action by State in Forest County 'Land Deals'

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—Action by the state in the Forest county "land deals" will probably be begun after the completion of an investigation soon after Jan. 1, a spokesman for the governor's office said here Tuesday.

It has been alleged that several Forest county officials negotiated the sale of large acreages of tax delinquent lands in the county to the federal government for forestry purposes at a profit to themselves of something like $21,000, without a penny of investment.

On complaint of a taxpayers' group after a mass meeting of protest, Governor LaFollette suspended District Attorney Francis Horne of Crandon and named Attorney General Orland S. Loomis acting district attorney pending an investigation.

Loomis, busy with the affairs of the state investigation into the bankrupt Buckman company here, deputized Joseph Messerschmidt, one of his assistants, to study the fraud charges two weeks ago. Messerschmidt expects to wind up his work this week, it was said.

Nicobar Islands British Stepping Stone to Orient

Nankauri Harbor Spacious Enough for Half Great
Britain's Fleet

Washington, D. C. — With the completion of the British naval base at Singapore, the Nicobar Islands may assume new importance as a stepping stone on Britain's way to the Orient. Magnificent Nankauri Harbor, landlocked by the islands, and practically invincible, is spacious enough to shelter half of the British fleet.

"Lying in the Bay of Bengal, seventy-five miles south of the Andaman Islands, Nicobar Islands stretch north and south for 163 miles across the route from India and Ceylon to Singapore," says a bulletin from the National Geographic Society.

"Only 12 of the 19 islands are inhabited. Practically two-thirds of the entire population of nearly 10,000 is crowded together on a single northernmost island, Car Nicobar, although its area of forty-nine square miles is only about one-thirtieth of the 635 square miles covered by the entire group. The reason for such crowding is coconuts, the mainstay of Nicobar life. Many of the other islands are unsuitable for raising the nuts.

"Car Nicobar bristles with coconut groves. Together with other palms and trees, coconut palms grow from the water's edge. Looking down from the air on this green sea of waving palms, one observes occasional sandy clearings near the coast, dotted with circular thatched, windowless and apparently doorless buildings like large beehives. These are the natives' rainproof huts. Raised on poles five to seven feet above the ground, they are entered from beneath through trap doors. Ventilation comes through the loosely-woven bamboo floor. Huts also hug the shoreline of the island. Some of these are ceremonial huts where natives retire to die or give birth; others house shops of foreign traders, most of whom are Indians, Chinese, or Malaysians.

"European missionaries attempted to colonize the Nicobars in the 17th and 18th centuries, but instead died from malaria, which is still prevalent. Few white men can survive on the islands because of the hot, humid atmosphere.

"Car Nicobar is 'wide open' at night. The climate makes the natives unwilling. During the day they loiter idly in the shade, sleeping, or chewing betel nut. At night they spring to life and, protected from evil spirits by torchlight, hold ceremonial feasts, make inter-island canoe trips, spear fish, or visit the traders' stores, which remain open until midnight.

"Easy lives the natives lead. Groves of coconut palms offer them free food, quench their thirst, provide shells for vessels, and oil for illumination. Fruit, yams, and fish are plentiful.

"A strike for 'shorter hours' wouldn't mean much to these easy-going natives who work at most perhaps two hours a day in half-hour stretches. They cultivate their gardens a little, weave a few baskets, make a few spearheads, but wrestling, dancing, and singing are their popular pastimes. Aside from food provided lavishly by nature, their wants are simple: imported rice, cigarettes to be smoked by men, women and children, ornaments, utensils, old suits of clothing and phonographs. All these can be obtained from the traders' stores by bringing in coconuts.

"Having no money, the Nicobars are not required to pay income taxes. Instead, the British Government gives them presents of tobacco, sugar, and medicine. Headmen are pleased when their presents include white top hats. These are striking additions to costumes which consist generally of only red, white, or blue loincloths."

Hel Peninsula Is Selected as Site For Polish Forts

Sandspit Located at Entrance to Growing Port
On Baltic Sea

Washington, D. C. — Big guns will dominate the white sand dunes of Hel Peninsula, Poland. This long narrow sandspit projecting into the Baltic north of Gdynia has been chosen by the Polish Ministry of War as a strategic site for fortifications.

"The peninsula already shelters a Polish naval aviation base," the National Geographic Society says, "and has one of the most powerful lighthouses in the Baltic, with a beam that can be seen for 30 miles. Hel's chief importance, however, is its strategic location at the entrance to the port of Gdynia. The peninsula curves in a southeast direction, sheltering the port from ocean storms, thus assuring safe anchorage.

"In 1924 most of Poland's sea trade passed through Danzig, 12 miles to the southeast. Gdynia then was only a small fishing village of wooden huts and 500 inhabitants. Its splendid natural site caused the Polish government, bent on construction of an all-Polish port, to study Gdynia's possibilities. Basins were excavated, and wharves and a breakwater built.

"Gdynia grew rapidly and today is one of the largest, best-equipped and busiest ports on the Baltic. Immense loading cranes travel along huge wharves past enormous cotton and fish warehouses, grain elevators, huge rice-husking and cold storage plants. A school has been founded to provide training for sailors. Shipping offices line the waterfront. In the future, shipbuilding yards will be added.

"Gdynia's population has jumped from 500 to approximately 100,000 inhabitants in less than two decades. With its fine residential hotels, hospitals, theaters, and concrete business buildings lining miles of well-lighted streets, the city resembles a modern American metropolis.

"It also is growing in popularity as a seaside resort. Passenger liners lie beside freighters in its harbor. Its yacht harbor, beach promenade, and evergreen forests attract 15,000 vacationists each summer. A university and cathedral are included in the city's plans."

WPA Relief Rolls Face Increased Load, Report

Washington—(P)—Relief rolls of the works progress administration, already running about 65,000 beyond the 1,500,000 average fixed by Administrator Harry L. Hopkins, faced the prospect today of another bulge coming in the wake of the General Motors lay-offs.

WPA officials said they had made no special preparations to meet such an emergency as the automobile firm's announcement that 30,000 workers would be laid off in January.

It was expected, however, that an additional relief load would result almost at once.

Government economists and relief authorities only a few days ago said unemployment had "levelled off" and that the rate of decline in jobs had been cut "tremendously."

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Jahnke and children, Mr. and Mrs. Merlin Beyer and son, Dale, of Milwaukee are spending the holidays with relatives and friends here.

PWA Engineer Gets New Job in Milwaukee Area

Charles H. Lange, PWA resident engineer in the Appleton area, was appointed resident engineer-inspector for the new Pulaski High school now under construction at Milwaukee. The appointment was announced by F. M. Logan, regional engineer, Chicago.

Replacing Lange in the Appleton area is George E. Purmort, engineer inspector on the Menasha High school. Purmort's duties will include inspection of the Neenah-Menasha sewer project, Kaukauna sewer project, Menasha High school and Appleton High school projects.

It was expected, however, that an additional relief load would result almost at once.

Government economists and relief authorities only a few days ago said unemployment had "levelled off" and that the rate of decline in jobs had been cut "tremendously."

G. M. Work Week Likely To Show Variations

Detroit—(P)—A General Motors official, amplifying an announcement working forces would be reduced by 30,000 employees Jan. 1, said today the projected 24-hour work week for the corporation's plants might vary in some localities.

It changed because of local conditions, the official said, the reduction would "probably be upward."

William S. Knudsen, General Motors president, announced the employment reduction yesterday. It was explained local conditions would be the measuring stick for readjustments by local managers of the corporation's automotive plants.

The Characters
Nina, Junior League and ex-debutante, impulsively married David to escape her love for her stepfather.
Richard, the charming, well-tailored stepfather, is on a 6-month trip with his wife after shamelessly talking love to Nina.
Honey, Nina's gay, youthful mother who is wild about Richard, is traveling on doctor's orders.
David, a bright young auto salesman, adores Nina and strives to make her happy on his small salary.
Chapter 36
The $5-a-Day Business
AFTER a while, Nina looked back on that listless, standstill period, as one of extreme happiness... not as happy as the earlier part of the spring and summer, when she had discovered she could get along without Richard... but happy, just the same. The next step was a step downward.
Things like this happened: David developed an impacted wisdom tooth, and ran up a large dentist bill. Whenever he made more than $50 a week, that went toward the doctor; so did the absurd "emergency" money; and whatever they could eke out of the day's stipend.
Three nights running David telephoned that he had to demonstrate cars, and wouldn't be home... after she had prepared the dinner.
Twice in one week, Gracie turned up, unexpectedly, with him. "I'm hanging round the office, to see if I can't get my old job back," and Nina found herself wondering about those night demonstrations.
... The party at Coney Island had been one long series of Gracie's grabbing David and going on the Red Mill with him, the roller coaster, the merry-go-round... Nina had never lost a beau, whom she hadn't meant to, deliberately; but she knew, for a certainty, that if she had, she never would have run after him the way Gracie was running after David now.
Perhaps the girl really did love him, poor soul; and very probably she did think she could make him a better wife than Nina... but this pursuing business! It was quite beyond her ken.
It was in only her most miserable moments that she was annoyed with David... she knew that she wasn't encouraging the girl; but she was getting pretty fed up with Gracie's her apparent friendliness, and her underhand methods.
David's Accusation
One evening, in the first part of September, David came home, and after greeting Nina with his customary, dear enthusiasm... and Button, too... he went over to the strong box.
He took up two $1 bills that still lay in the day's compartment.
He looked at them and then at Nina. After a minute, he put them back and closed the box.
He said: "Nina, I haven't been spying on you, but lately, with this dentist bill hanging over me, I've been watching the budget pretty closely..." He looked away from her, out through the window. He said: "Nina, you've been using your Turn to Page 24

Farm Program to Be Banquet Topic At Winneconne

Farmers and Businessmen Will Attend Joint Meeting Jan. 10

Neenah—To educate Winneconne county farmers as well as businessmen in the county farm program is the purpose of a banquet which will be staged at 7 o'clock Monday evening, Jan. 10, at the Village Hall, Winneconne, according to Robert C. Heffernan, county agricultural agent.

The agent's office and the County Agricultural Conservation association are sponsoring the farmers-businessmen's meeting and banquet. "In his notice, Mr. Heffernan said, 'Now that it seems the farm program is to stay, I feel that a better understanding of the program is necessary, not only by the farmers but by the city people as well, and since there is much interest being shown by the businessmen in the city in a farm program, it has been decided to hold a joint meeting.'

Under the present county farm program, each township has three community committees charged with the responsibility of carrying out this program in their respective communities. Each one of these community committees has its chairman. There also is a county committee consisting of three farmers who are charged with the duty of carrying out the program in the county, which makes a total of 42 farmers in the county working on the program.

Each one of these farmers will invite a business from the city or village in his community to the banquet-meeting. The banquet will be followed by short talks by state agricultural and business leaders after which the meeting will consist of an open forum on the discussion of the farm program. Mr. Heffernan pointed out that the meeting is not to sell the particular farm program presently existing in the county or any other farm program. The purpose of the meeting is simply to talk over the situation as it exists today and decide whether the farmers in this county need a farm program and what kind, the agent said.

5,000 Dog Licenses Will Be Distributed In Winnebago County

Neenah—Nearly 5,000 dog license tags for 1938 have been received for distribution by the county clerk's office, according to Arthur E. Hedke, county clerk. The tags will be given out to town and city treasurers of the county as called for.

Most of the 4,500 tags received will remain in Oshkosh, but a large block of them will come to the Twin Cities. Last year 4,160 tags were sold in the county.

A few town officials have not yet remitted for 1937 tags sold, according to Mr. Hedke. Remittance must be made before the 1938 supplies are distributed.

Treasurers who have not called for their tag receipt books are also asked to do so within the next few days.

Neenah—Even though the Hub Hucks won only two games from the Menasha Lumber and Fuel company keglers, they increased their Commercial bowling league lead when the Wire Works dropped three and the Gold Labels won only one at the Hendy alleys Tuesday evening.

G. Betz showed the other keglers how to do it when he collected a 705 score on scores of 260, 241 and 204, aided by only a 6 pin handicap. Blahn had a 600 on lines of 189, 227 and 184 and C. Mayer a 611 on 228, 215 and 168 lines for the only other honor counts.

Dim Lights for Safety

Neenah—To educate Winneconne county farmers as well as businessmen in the county farm program is the purpose of a banquet which will be staged at 7 o'clock Monday evening, Jan. 10, at the Village Hall, Winneconne, according to Robert C. Heffernan, county agricultural agent.

The agent's office and the County Agricultural Conservation association are sponsoring the farmers-businessmen's meeting and banquet. "In his notice, Mr. Heffernan said, 'Now that it seems the farm program is to stay, I feel that a better understanding of the program is necessary, not only by the farmers but by the city people as well, and since there is much interest being shown by the businessmen in the city in a farm program, it has been decided to hold a joint meeting.'

Under the present county farm program, each township has three community committees charged with the responsibility of carrying out this program in their respective communities. Each one of these community committees has its chairman. There also is a county committee consisting of three farmers who are charged with the duty of carrying out the program in the county, which makes a total of 42 farmers in the county working on the program.

Each one of these farmers will invite a business from the city or village in his community to the banquet-meeting. The banquet will be followed by short talks by state agricultural and business leaders after which the meeting will consist of an open forum on the discussion of the farm program. Mr. Heffernan pointed out that the meeting is not to sell the particular farm program presently existing in the county or any other farm program. The purpose of the meeting is simply to talk over the situation as it exists today and decide whether the farmers in this county need a farm program and what kind, the agent said.

Red Rockets to Have Few Drills For Appleton Tilt

Four of Neenah High School Gymnasium Being Refinished

Neenah—Before Coach Ole Jorgensen's Neenah High school basketball quintet resumes its chase for the Northeastern Wisconsin conference cage championship, the Red Rockets will move out of conference competition to battle the Appleton Terrors Tuesday night, Jan. 4, here.

Neenah has recorded three victories so far this season, two of which have been over conference teams. The other win was over St. Mary of Menasha. Appleton is leading the Fox River valley conference, having won both games played, defeating Sheboygan and Fond du Lac.

Last year Appleton recorded a 30 to 19 triumph over the Red Rockets, and although the Terrors are on top in the valley circuit this year the Rockets are considered to be a better quintet this year than last season.

The Terrors will have the edge over the Neenah contingent in that they will have had much more practice during the Christmas vacation. The Terrors have been drilling daily since school was dismissed and Thursday night they will oppose the Antigo High school quintet.

Neenah, on the other hand, probably will have about two days of practice since the New London game Tuesday night, Dec. 22, when the Rockets beat New London, 32 to 24. The gym floor has been refinished during the Christmas vacation and will not be ready for use before Thursday, Jorgensen reported.

Although the cage mentor probably will use his entire first string against Appleton, he will probably start Arthur Jackson, Dan Schmidt at forward positions, Captain Jack Hesselman at the pivot berth, and assign Harlan Hesselman and Warren Kettering at guard positions.

Miss Verna Hackstock entertained Tuesday evening at a Christmas party at her home at 214 First street. Christmas gifts were exchanged and holiday games played with honors awarded Maurilla Rittenkrug, Louise Liebhauser, Rita Hinner of Appleton and Dorothy Heit. Other guests were Margaret Heit and Theresa Schmidt, Menasha, Dorothy Schommer, Marie Pleier, Dorothy Meyer and Barbara Heinemann, all of Appleton.

Neenah Tax Payments Are Ahead of Last Year

Neenah—With $13,983.81 paid in during the first two days, the tax payments so far are over the average and better than last year, City Treasurer W. H. Loehning said today.

The treasurer reported that about 150 property owners have paid their taxes already and that only four of them have taken advantage of the installment plan.

Of the $13,983.81 paid so far, $13,383.56 is for real estate and $600.25 for personal property.

There is still $431,635.75 to be paid, however, and with the exception of those who choose to pay on the installment plan, this amount must be turned in by April 1. Real estate and personal property taxes this year will amount to $431,677.2, while special charges will amount to $12,941.83.

Menasha—Earl Otto, Appleton wrestler, has been signed as referee of the next wrestling show at S. A. Cook armory on Wednesday evening, Jan. 5, according to William Erickson, sports promoter.

The $12 show and size 25 ring of Cliff Thompson, world's largest man who will appear as an attraction at the mat show, will be displayed in local stores this week. A restaurant also will display one of its average meals, which consists of a three pound steak, six baked potatoes, a quart of milk, several slices of bread, a side dish and an entire apple pie for desert.

Menasha Couple Celebrates 50th Wedding Anniversary

Menasha—Mr. and Mrs. George DeWolf, 564 Milwaukee street, quietly observed their golden wedding anniversary at their home Tuesday afternoon and evening. Two guests who were present at the ceremony 50 years ago as well as the two daughters and daughter-in-law of the DeWolfs were present at a dinner.

George DeWolf and Miss Edith Brown were united in marriage at their home in Neenah on Dec. 28, 1887. The Rev. M. Mackintosh, pastor of the First Congregational church of Menasha, conducted the service. The couple was attended by Harry DeWolf, former president of the Bank of Menasha, and Mrs. Charles Fournier, brother and sister of the bridegroom and bride respectively.

Both Harry DeWolf and Mrs. Fournier are now dead. Mr. and Mrs. DeWolf have spent their entire lives in the Twin Cities although Mr. DeWolf worked as a sheet metal worker in Fond du Lac for several years while maintaining his home here.

Mr. and Mrs. DeWolf have two daughters, Marion, Mrs. Harold Tuttle of Chicago and Miss Harriet, at home, and a son, Neil, at Eau Claire, Wis., where he lives.

Many neighbors and friends called yesterday to offer their congratulations. Many messages of congratulations also were received. "Was the best time I had in my life," declared Mr. DeWolf.

A Lawrence college professor will be guest speaker at the Neenah High school PTA meeting Tuesday, Jan. 11 but definite acceptance of the engagement as speaker has not been received by Mrs. C. W. Nelson, program chairman. Mrs. N. C. Jersild, president of the association, plans to call an executive board meeting prior to the Jan. 11 meeting to outline the year's program.

The Rev. W. R. Courtney, pastor of First Presbyterian church, will be guest speaker at the Jan. 20 meeting of the Washington Parent Teachers association. He is to discuss "School and Better Citizenship." Mrs. Francis Wozalla is president of the group.

Plans for the card and game party scheduled for December and postponed until January are being arranged by Mrs. Andrew Hopfens, chairman of the Nicolet school PTA in Menasha. The date of the party, on the regular evening meeting night in January will be Tuesday, Jan. 18. Mrs. I. M. Catlin is president of the association.

The Neenah High school Band Mothers plan to discuss the coming month's program and project activity when they meet at 7:30 Tuesday evening, Jan. 4 in Kimberly Junior High school.

St. Mary Team to Meet Manitowoc Cagers Thursday

Two Preliminary Games to Precede Varsity Contest

Menasha—St. Mary basketball players will open their home season against the Manitowoc Ship Builders at the St. Mary gym at 8:15 Thursday evening. The game will be preceded by two preliminary tilts.

"B" squads of the two schools will play one of the preliminary games, starting at 7:15 while the St. Mary Catholic Boys' conference team will play St. Boniface-of-Manitowoc in a non-conference game. The first game is scheduled to start at 6:30.

The second game is the object of both the varsity and the "B" Zephyrs squads. Manitowoc went into an overtime period to defeat the varsity while the reserves received their only defeat in three games at Manitowoc.

The Zephyrs received a blow when Sensesbrenner, reserve forward who has been alternating with Tony Will, broke a finger in practice this week. He will be out of the game for some time.

The Zephyrs received a short holiday and as is customary showed poorly when they resumed practice. A light drill was scheduled for today.

The Manitowoc reserves are coached by Al Guepe, one of the famous football players of Marquette fame. Several alterations in the varsity lineup have been threatened by Coach Marvin Miller in order to secure better performances from the team.

Bean Feed Planned for Twin City Boy Scouts

Menasha—Plans are being made by the committees for the bean feed to be given the boy scouts of the Neenah-Menasha district on Thursday, Jan. 13, at S. A. Cook armory.

Hugh L. Gear is the general chairman of the event while the Rev. W. A. Jacobs is chairman of the program committee and Herbert Sabrowski is chairman of the food committee.

All boy scouts, members of cub packs, prospective new scouts and their dads will be invited to the feed which will start at 6:30.

Dick arrived from Rhinelander Tuesday evening to visit with her mother, Mrs. J. Acker, Main street, and other relatives.

Neenah Clubs to Enter Exhibit in Show at Oshkosh

Neenah—Featuring their winter feeding program, the Twin City Rod and Gun club combined with the Neenah high school Conservation club will enter an exhibit in the second annual Wildlife and Conservation show at the Oshkosh armory Jan. 14, 15 and 16.

The show is sponsored by the conservation clubs in the county and the Winnebago and Booster club. It is expected that the show will be practically equivalent to a visit to the state game farm at Poynette.

The Twin City club and junior organization plan to make their exhibit resemble a winter feeding scene with mounted birds feeding from hoppers. The hoppers were built by the junior club with material furnished by the Twin City club. Armin Gerhardt, supervisor of the junior organization, and Arthur Haas, president of the Twin City club are in charge of the exhibit, and a committee to assist them will be named soon.

E. J. Ledvina, general chairman of the committee in charge of the show, told members of the local clubs that the state conservation department is furnishing specimens of practically all of the game birds, fox, wolf, wildcat, rabbit, squirrel, opossum and porcupine. And it is possible the state will exhibit bear and deer.

Conservation Warden Albert F. Dunham reported that pens to be used at the show are already in Oshkosh and are being assembled at the conservation station on Lake Drive.

In addition to the state exhibit the national forestry service will have a display at the show and WPA conservation work in the state will be demonstrated.

Marshfield, Ore.—Claiming to be the only man in the world who "cannot be lost," T. D. Rockwell, of Portland, carries his name tattooed in 34 languages on his legs.

Rockwell said he conceived the idea of the tattooed names to provide him identification for cashing checks no matter what part of the world he traveled in.

Lower Prices on Wheat Prevail in Trade at Chicago

Securities Uncertainty and Dearth of Demand Contribute to Decline

Chicago—(P)—Lower prices on wheat prevailed today, with one abrupt downward plunge of 2 cents resulting from a transient wave of stop loss sales.

Contributing to weakness of wheat values was unsettlement of securities together with dearth of export demand for wheat from North America. Weather conditions in Argentina remained favorable for harvesting the new wheat crop there.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were 1-11 cents under yesterday's finish, May 90-1-1, July 85-85-1, corn unchanged to 1 higher, May 61-1, July 60-1, and oats unchanged to 1 off.

Sink to Lower Levels

New York—(P)—Losses of fractions to more than 2 points were general in late trading on the curb exchange today.

The decline was extended in most sections, although selling was not so urgent as in the preceding session.

A few specialties dropped sharply, caused by losses of 3 to 5 points at one time in Peppercorn, Quarter Oats and United Shoe Machinery.

New York Curb Stocks

Sink to Lower Levels

New York—(P)—Losses of fractions to more than 2 points were general in late trading on the curb exchange today.

The decline was extended in most sections, although selling was not so urgent as in the preceding session.

A few specialties dropped sharply, caused by losses of 3 to 5 points at one time in Peppercorn, Quarter Oats and United Shoe Machinery.

New York—(P)—Recurrent buying spells pushed aircraft steel and other shares up in the stock market today, but there were plenty of losers in other divisions.

The rate of business, moderate in the morning hours, picked up as the day wore on. Toward the finish the ticker felt behind. Profit realization was absorbed with ease and dips were largely fractional.

Possibility naval building would be accelerated was a motivating factor in the advance of armament issues. The second address this afternoon of Assistant Attorney General Robert H. Jackson, castigating "certain groups" of big business, took the financial district somewhat by surprise but its force was not felt immediately.

Transactions approximated 2,300,000 shares.

Interest in the rails was retarded by official estimates carloadings for the week ended Dec. 25 would show a more than seasonal decline.

Bethlehem steel was a leader throughout the day. Others higher, most of the time were U. S. Steel, Youngstown Sheet and Tube, Boeing, Douglas Aircraft, Westinghouse, General Electric, Du Pont, Johnson, Radio Electric Nickel, International Harvester, Texas Corp., Santa Fe, Philip Morris and Montgomery Ward.

Chrysler, down most of the day, pointed up at the finish.

Roosevelt Only Pump Priming in Arms Proposals

Purpose of More Ship Building Is to Aid Recovery Movement

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—Knowing the pacific tendencies of the American people, it would be a mistake to assume that President Roosevelt has anything but "pump-priming" in mind in his proposals to increase our naval armament.

The purpose of any battle-ships is, of course, to make the navy more effective, but the immediate value of armament construction at a time when the United States has not the slightest intention of going to war and has not the remotest danger of being invaded would seem to be to aid the domestic recovery movement.

While it is true that the sinking of the Panay in the Far East has focused attention on the possibility of strained relations with Japan, nevertheless, as the world is coming out of the depression, any outbreak of war between Japan and other powers like the United States would soon involve the British and the French navies, which, together with the American fleet in the Pacific, would be more than adequate to overbalance the Japanese naval strength.

Likewise, in these days of naval aviation, the Soviet Union's air force is something which would be brought into action in the Far East should a world war be begun. Taken altogether, there is no real need for more armament on the part of the United States unless it be taken for granted that America would have no allies in a war between America and Japan.

The very outspoken sentiment of the American people on the subject of the present Far Eastern situation would seem to indicate that armament building is not going to be received as a gesture of war, but as a measure of domestic economics.

To build battleships means to use steel and other raw materials in large quantities. Today the steel industry is in the doldrums. Its operations are way below even a normal average. Battleship construction means an impetus to the steel industry. Likewise there are other naval vessels to be built. All this takes new machinery, electrical equipment, and various other purchases.

Stay Within Budget
It may be that the administration will spend about $200,000,000 on the naval program than heretofore. The plan is to keep the expenditures within the budget. In a sense, the Roosevelt policy is to switch from boondoggling and loafing to the construction of warships so that the country has at least something to show for its expenditures, something by way of preparedness in a world that is so disturbed that anything might happen. Even the pacifist groups will have difficulty answering the argument that the bigger the navy the less chance there is for invasion of our seacoasts by any foreign power. The traditional contention has been that, when armaments grow big, the militaristic temptation is to use them in provoking offensive wars. Most Americans do not accept the view that any naval group in America can force a war.

From a "pump priming" standpoint, the increase in naval construction has some advantages over other schemes because it does not involve grants and subsidies to the states or competition with private businesses or services. It is an expansion of the government's own business—national defense.

Looked at broadly, however, the program cannot be justified as a sound national policy. To build battleships as a means of priming the pump when everybody who has been advising the administration in recent weeks from the business group has been insisting on a clarification of tax laws and the removal of other restrictive measures is to postpone the ultimate reorganization of our domestic economy on a sound basis. The European countries have already gotten themselves so involved in armament building on such a scale that, if peace could be assured, there would be a collapse of their respective economies systems and considerable unemployment.

It may well be that in the president's mind is the idea that something has to be done to start an upward curve of the business chart.

Auxiliary Unit at Black Creek Plans Series of Parties

Black Creek—Fifteen members attended the meeting of the American Legion auxiliary Monday evening at their club rooms.

Plans were made to have a series of card parties beginning Jan. 6. Grand prizes will be given and schafkopf, bridge and skat will be played.

Mrs. R. D. Bishop was appointed hostess for the first card party and Mrs. John Jarchow chairman of the lunch committee.

Following the business meeting, a lunch was served by Mrs. Henry Hartschorn, Mrs. John Jarchow, Mrs. Louis Kaphingst, Mrs. Peter Kitzinger.

A daughter was born Christmas eve to Mr. and Mrs. John Miller. Dinner guests Sunday noon of Mr. and Mrs. John Miller were Mr. and Mrs. Lester Nimmer and children, Rosendale, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bentle and children, Appleton. Their supper guests on Saturday evening were Miss Emma Last of Appleton and Mr. and Mrs. William Le Capitaine.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Kaphingst entertained Sunday at dinner and luncheon. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Kaphingst, John Kaphingst, Bonduel, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Kaphingst, Navarino; Miss Joyce Bruch, Sylvester Tease and August Kullath, Appleton.

Survivors are the widow, two daughters, one son and four grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Dietrich and children of Appleton were weekend guests at the A. F. Piehl home. William Eberhard has returned from a hospital at Savannah, Mo.

Select Chairmen for Birthday Celebrations

Selection of chairmen to head celebration activities in the various Outagamie county cities and villages on President Roosevelt's birthday anniversaries, Jan. 29, is being made this week by Andrew Parnell, county chairman.

All funds raised through activities in connection with the president's birthday will be given by the president to the "New National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis." Last November the president gave his birthday in perpetuity to the new national foundation. The general purpose of the new foundation will be to lead, direct and unify the fight on every phase of infantile paralysis.

and that, if steel starts up, confidence will reappear in other lines. From a psychological viewpoint, the new program of increased armament will find acceptance, but it does seem as if Mr. Roosevelt has yielded to a makeshift for the time being, at least until he can see whether 1938 will turn out to be better or worse than has been anticipated.

Motor Industry
Naturally, the news of the layoffs in the motor industry is not pleasant news here—and it has been duly noted by the president himself—but, on the other hand, William S. Knudsen of General Motors, who made the announcement concerning diminution of employment in his American plants, put his finger on a situation that may be corrected when he said:

"The price level rose too fast in the spring of 1937 and we just could not digest it."
What forced the price level up? The administration claims that wage increases in steel, for instance, were passed on to the consumer of steel products at a rate that was larger than the actual wage increases. The motor car companies are big users of steel. But what has not been ascertained by the government here and what really ought to be determined is what happened to the other items that enter into steel-making, such as cost of coal, for example, and machinery and other things bought in which in turn there were wage increases.

If the price level rose too fast and prices are readjusted in 1938 so that buying is resumed, and if there is a cessation of labor strife in the major industries, it may be that the corrective movement will be felt sometime in 1938. Meantime, the naval armament program helps steel and heavy goods industries where the drop in unemployment has been most serious.

own money for household expenses."

He said it quietly enough, but as though he had just discovered she was a murderer. . . and Nina felt quite as guilty.

"Just ever so little, David. . . Just to help out."

"Have you been doing it right along?" You have, haven't you, from the first?"

"Well, I don't remember exactly how it started, darling. . . Really, truly, it hasn't amounted to a thing."

He said, gravely: "It amounts to the fact that you've gone back on our agreement. Nina, that's quite a lot, the way I figure things."

He was right, of course, but Nina began to get angry, just the same. "I'm sorry, David." She couldn't seem to say any more.

He appeared to be waiting. Then: "How much has it been? I'll pay you back. . . How much, five, ten dollars a week?"

"Oh, David! I haven't kept track. Don't be. . . don't be stupid about this thing, darling. You said I could spend my money on clothes and personal things, well, I haven't needed anything at all, practically."

So what's the difference if I spend a few cents of it for a melon, now and then. . . or the movies in the evening?"

He smiled at that. . . but not his usual gay smile.

"I dare say you have reasoned out what seems to you a perfectly good excuse, dear; but the thing is, I happen to feel very strongly on the subject, and we agreed about it at the beginning. . . You'll stop, now that I ask you, won't you, Nina?"

"Yes." That was all she could seem to bring herself to say. And David had finished, too, apparently. They had their dinner, and went for a walk, and came home and read for a while before going to bed, but there was a feeling of strain throughout the whole evening. Nina felt it dreadfully, because, in spite of heat, or fatigue, or discouragement, or—anything, there had been only comradeliness between them, before.

He had always been an angel of thoughtfulness and devotion. Even in her most depressed moments it had never occurred to Nina to blame him for the plight she was in. . . That had been of her own choosing. He had always done his best; but now she did think he was being a bit unreasonable.

Money. . . That was funny. Richard didn't seem to count so much any more, but money. . .

She thought: "Everyone knows that the first year of marriage is the hardest. . . needs concessions on both sides. If I only stand the gaff now, everything is bound to be all right. We are happy together, there's only this one thing David is bound to make good and then even that will be swept away. Hold on, Nina. . ."

When the lights were out, he asked her again, gently, please to tell him how much she figured she had spent—on melons. He wanted to pay her back.

But when she cried a little, and begged him, please, not to make her feel badly, he said all right, let it go.

Perhaps he wasn't so unreasonable after all. Perhaps she hadn't played fair.

Fear Grips Nina
But things have a way of going in pairs. . . and the next disagreement about money was much more serious.

Every day, it seemed, the papers were coming out with headlines, hottest September such and such in ten years; so many deaths; so many people prostrated. Nina began to wonder how long it would be before her name joined the list.

She looked at the pictures of naked little boys enjoying their two weeks at some charity Fresh Air farm, and envied them. . . Nina, the former Nina Stafford of East 74th street, Junior League, ex-debutante par excellence, . . . envying a lot of little undernourished news boys! She had to laugh.

The $5-a-day business ("No foolin' this time, Nina!" "No foolin', David!") was going very badly. Was it possible that 10 or 15 dollars a week could make such a difference. . . or had she taken money for what?

Beside the food, there were so many stupid extras, every day. . . things that didn't show. Razor blades, soap, the window cleaner—when the glass got so dirty you could hardly see through. Though she tried her best to press David's suits, every other time, there were frequent 50-cent pieces that went to the valet. . . and, in spite of washing out her own stockings and silk underthings, the laundry bills were alarmingly high.

It was on one of her least cheery days, a close, muggy Tuesday, that McDuff called with a pair of new slippers.

As luck would have it, the apartment had never looked sweeter. Everything was in order. David—having been—had brought her some white roses and a few sprays of blue delphinium. They looked too lovely in the blue and white living-room. To—cap the climax, Nina had just made herself some lemonade, and it stood in a frosted silver pitcher beside a tall glass, on one of the walnut coffee tables. . . It was probably as anything else, as much as anything else, that completely broke down the bride and groom, when they entered. To them, hot and weary from apartment hunting, Nina and her frosted pitcher, and her blue walls seemed heaven indeed.

"It's perfect, that's all there is to it, Jim. Perfect."

Nina and McDuff exchanged forlorn glances.

The faithful superintendent began getting in sly pokes about the dimness, and the noisy alleyway.

The bride and groom loved a dim light. They adored noise.

Each team will be given a letter or number index showing their location on the floor during the contest and team members must remain at their posts, moving only at the direction of the floor manager.

First Aid Tests For Boy Scouts Here Next Month

Appleton District Troops Will Compete; Gardner Chairman

The Appleton district first aid contest will follow winter camp, now being held at Gardner Dam, in the procession of Boy Scout activities.

Actually there will be two contests, for the number of boys who will participate make two evenings necessary. The first will be held Friday night, Jan. 1, in the Roosevelt Junior High school gymnasium, the second Monday night, Jan. 10, in the Wilson Junior High school gym.

At Gardner of Appleton is general chairman for the contest. Troops from Appleton, Neenah, Menasha, New London, Hortonville, Seymour, Black Creek, Kimberly, Kaukauna, and Brillion have been invited to participate.

Winners in the Appleton district contest will compete with the best first aid teams in the Clintonville and Shawano districts for valley council supremacy. The council champions will be entered in regional contests later in the spring.

The contests are conducted on a patrol team basis from regular registered troops. The age limits have been set at 18 years. The new Red Cross handbook is being used as the guide.

Four Problems
Four problems will be assigned to each contest with one or two judges for each problem. The team leaders will be called to the front and given typed copies of the problem. After two readings of the problem, the leaders will return to their teams to issue instructions. The teams then will return to their respective locations on the floor and leaders will be given two minutes for further instructions. A whistle will announce the beginning of work. Teams will not be allowed to discuss the problem with leaders. Each first aid test has a certain number of minutes allotted for completion and overtime will go down as discount in the judging.

An example of a first aid problem follows:
"A man is watching a ball game in a park when a small insect enters his left ear. He becomes panic stricken with pain and fear. He trips and falls and his wrist is out of line like a fork handle. (This problem is allowed four minutes) Diagnosis: (1) Insect in left ear; (2) broken left wrist. Treatment: (1) Send for a doctor; (2) Turn head with left ear up; (3) Fill ear with warm water; (4) Use no sharp instruments; (5) Splint his wrist."

REACHED NEW HIGH
New York—Enough cotton cloth to form a white cover for the state of Delaware was woven by the country's textile mills in 1937.

Trade association figures, with December partly estimated, placed the year's output at 9,000,000,000 square yards—2,370 square miles—the greatest on record. Last year 8,573,000,000 square yards were woven and in 1927, the previous record year, 8,380,000,000. Depression shrank production in 1932 to 6,446,000,000 square yards.
